WINTER'S GRIP ON MILLIONS IS BROKEN TODAY

From Great Lakes to Maritimes Thaw Brings Transportation Problems; In Ontario, as Deep Snow Thaws, Many Motorists Find Cars Bogged Down

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 25.—Ontario thawed out today. Huge snow drifts, piled high on frozen ground throughout the province, melted beneath balmy spring warmth and sent rivers of water coursing over roads blockaded with snow a few days ago. The chill of winter left the air.

But as the temperature soared far above freezing in most of the provinces, the thaw brought its discomforts. Motorists were bogged down in muddy country roads. In the cities, autos and pedestrians slithered over ice-coated streets polished to glassy smoothness by the water.

Many flooded cellars were reported in Galt and Brantford, and Brantford's engineering department checked over its dynamite and sandbag stores for a possible break-up of the Grand River ice. Elsewhere streams were swelling with melted snow.

IN QUEBEC

Montreal, Feb. 25.—Spring-like weather broke suddenly on Quebec and sections of the Maritime Provinces today in the wake of a brief blizzard and hailstorm that hampered traffic and disrupted power and communication lines between Montreal and the seaboard.

The storm, blown by a howling wind, swept eastward over the provinces yesterday evening and disappeared, leaving behind tangled and broken telegraph and telephone wires and disabled electric power transmission stations. Several towns along the south shore of the St. Lawrence near Montreal were left in darkness

Woman Tells of Kidnap Threat Against Virginia Bruce's Daughter

Associated Press

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 25.—Police guard was maintained today at the home of Virginia Bruce, screen actress, whose two-year-old daughter, Susan Ann Gilbert, was reported threatened with kidnapping.

Gladys Hall, film writer, and Miss Bruce's personal representative, told detectives an unidentified woman had warned her the blonde player and her child were in "great danger and must be notified."

Miss Hall said the woman approached her at her home and insisted she be given Miss Bruce's telephone number and street address.

When Miss Hall told her to contact the actress through her studio, the woman reportedly exclaimed, "No, no, they are watching the studio. If I

DUST IS CARRIED FAR ON WINDS

Associated Press

Boston, Feb. 25.—A brownish dust, possibly blown from western plains, coated New England's covering of snow today.

It ranged from a faint trace in southern New England to a heavier deposit described as brown sand, amber dust or yellowish silt in other sections, especially north of Boston.

Meteorologists said they believed the deposit was blown eastward from western and southwestern plains. A similar phenomenon was noticed in Quebec.

LEAST SNOW IN VICTORIA

All Surrounding Districts of Vancouver Island Report Additional Falls

Victoria had the least snow of any spot in British Columbia today. Outlying portions of the city and the higher altitudes reported additional falls during the night, but Victoria was pretty well clear today, although there were light flurries this morning and more can be expected later in the day.

The minimum temperature this morning was 26 degrees. At noon the thermometer had risen to 38 degrees.

Temperatures are moderating along the northern coast of British Columbia and this is a good sign for Victoria, F. Napier Denison, superintendent at Gonzales said this morning. Conditions are becoming generally mild, although it is still intensely cold in the interior and on the prairies.

More snow fell on the Sooke Hills and the Malahat Highway during the night. Bamberton reported an additional two inches this morning. All weather stations along the West Coast of Vancouver Island also reported snow, as did Vancouver and various places in Washington and Oregon.

A southwest wind blew over Victoria this morning and this helped to keep the snow away.

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Snow continued to fall over the lower mainland of British Columbia today

FORMALITIES CURTAILED AS THIRD SESSION OF B.C. ASSEMBLY STARTS

Ceremonies Outside Legislative Buildinggs Absent and House Pays Silent Tribute to Departed Monarch

TWO VACANCIES ARE REPORTED

Absence of the pomp and color which usually attend the ceremony marked the opening today of the British Columbia Legislature for its first 1936 session, the third of the present assembly.

The customary military parade was cancelled and the traditional rites within the assembly hall were subdued by the royal purple and black drapes which hung about the late King's portrait and above the Speaker's chair.

Lieutenant-Governor J. W. Fordham Johnson arrived at the Legislative Buildings at 3 o'clock from Government House and was given the customary salute of seventeen guns by the 58th Battery, C.G.A., under Major R. E. A. Diespecker.

His Honor proceeded directly into the main entrance, accompanied by his aides, Lieut.-Commander A. C. Wurtele, R.C.N., and Capt. R. L. Mitchell, and his private secretary, A. M. D. Fairbairn.

They were met at the head of the steps by Premier Pattullo. The whole party went to the Executive Chamber, where His Honor, according to custom, received the beribboned copy of the Speech from the Throne from P. Walker, Deputy Provincial Secretary.

HOUSE CALLED TOGETHER

Meanwhile Mr. Speaker H. G. Perry had entered the House and rung the divisional bell to call the House together.

The time-honored ritual was carried out, with Mr. Speaker informing the members that His Honor was ready to meet them and then going to the executive chamber to return with him.

As His Honor read the Speech From the Throne, the Government House party consisting of Mrs. Fordham Johnson, Mrs. G. C. Jones, Mrs. F. G. C. Wood and Capt. and Mrs. Hobart Molson were seated at his left.

The place of seniority on the right was accorded Hon. S. F. Tolmie, former Premier of British Columbia, who holds that precedence as a privy

Measures to Improve Their Position at Fall Session, Says Throne Speech

Provincial aid for municipalities will be given at the fall session of the Legislature, it was announced in the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the House this afternoon.

The Speech indicated that the legislation planned by the government for the spring session will not be extensive, and failed to mention any specific items.

Following is the full text:

The text of the Speech from the Throne was as follows:

"Mr. Speaker and members of the Legislative Assembly:

"I welcome you to the Third Session of the Eighteenth Parliament of British Columbia.

"Last year was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession to the Throne of His Gracious Majesty King George V, and great was the rejoicing of his people. With deep sorrow we now record the death of His late Majesty. In singular degree he had won the devotion, affection and respect of all his subjects, and the manifestations of esteem and regard from all parts of the world bear striking tribute to the character of His late Majesty.

Troops Asked To Control Strike

Sheriff at Akron, Ohio, Wants Aid While Goodyear Staffs Demonstrate

Associated Press

Akron, O. Feb. 25.—Sheriff James T. Flower announced today he was seeking the aid of national guard troops to control the strike situation at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company plants.

As he prepared to enforce a court injunction against mass picketing, Flower said he had telephoned Col. L. B. Brown in the adjutant-general's office in Columbus to call for militia.

He was referred to Governor Martin L. Davey, he said.

Pickets blocked a street intersection leading to one of the main Goodyear plants today and another group prevented several freight cars from entering it on a belt line railroad.

Most of the 14,000 employees were gathered near the plant. Many were armed with clubs, missiles and other weapons, said Chief Deputy Sheriff George Neal. Excitement ran high.

Some of the strikers wore "tin hats," as their metal helmets are called, in evident preparation for any kind of a battle.

FRANCO-SOVIET PACT DEFENDED

Canadian Press from Havas

Paris, Feb. 25.—The Franco-Soviet pact of mutual assistance has nothing in common with the pre-war Franco-Russian alliance because its doors are still wide open to Germany, Foreign Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin declared in the Chamber of Deputies today in defending ratification of the treaty with Moscow.

Constructed within the framework of the League of Nations, the Franco-Soviet pact will remain "open to all nations," M. Flandin declared.

British, German And U.S. Naval Pact Proposed

Move Made By Britain For Limitation Agreement As Failure of Four-power Conference in London Seems Near London, Feb. 25.—Capt. von Wassner, German naval attache, discussed the proposed Anglo-German-United States naval agreement with Robert L. Craigie, British Assistant Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs, this afternoon, and was understood to have told Mr. Craigie Germany was favorably disposed towards any agreement with Britain on naval matters.

Associated Press

London, Feb. 25.—Great Britain, anticipating failure of the Four-power Naval Conference, has proposed an Anglo-German-United States naval agreement, it was learned today from authoritative sources.

Members of the United States delegation, asked to confirm this report, refused to discuss it.

High naval sources described the proposal as one of the most important affecting Britain, the United States and Germany since the Great War.

The agreement would limit the sizes and types of ships and guns among the three countries concerned and would provide for an

SCRAP IRON IS SENT TO ITALY

Canadian Press

Glace Bay, N.S., Feb. 25.—Laden with scrap iron for Italy, the Greek freighter Tasis was bound today for Genoa after being permitted to take on sufficient fuel here to complete her voyage from New York.

The Tasis was the second Italy-bound ship permitted to take bunker in Cape Breton since Canada imposed sanctions on the warring Fascist state. The freighter Farnham, also carrying scrap iron, was allowed by instructions from Ottawa by November to take on sufficient coal to carry through to her Italian destination.

AIRPLANES FOR SELASSIE DELAYED

Associated Press

Paris, Feb. 25.—Authoritative sources said today a fleet of ten United States planes purchased for Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia may be held in France and not be permitted to go to their destination.

Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 24.—The State Department was without information today concerning the reported detention in France of United States planes supposedly en route to Ethiopia for service in Emperor Haile Selassie's defence against Italian troops.

Under the neutrality laws, shipments of airplanes from the United States to either Ethiopia or Italy are prohibited.

Central Bank's Work Reviewed

G. F. Towers Speaks at First Annual Meeting of Bank of Canada

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Any supposition the Bank of England exercised a "universal and malign influence in financial matters the world over" was described as "nonsense" by Graham Ford Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, in his address at the annual meeting of shareholders today.

In any event, Mr. Towers added, "one can safely rely on the central banks and governments of the respective Dominions to see that no undue or pernicious influence is exerted. In these unsettled times the real problems of central banks are grave enough. It would be regrettable if the burden were increased by the addition of imaginary complications."

The world's business structure had apparently survived a period during which "international commonsense has been conspicuous by its absence," Mr. Towers declared. "In a world

Commons Asked To Approve U.S. Trade Treaty

Premier King Moves for Ratification of Pact Which Is Increasing Canada's Exchange of Goods With Republic and Full Dress Debate Begins

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Premier King this afternoon moved in the House of Commons approval of the Canadian-United States reciprocity treaty. It prompted a full-dress debate with Conservative Leader Bennett expected to oppose the treaty

The treaty, negotiated in Washington last November, came into operation January 1 in most aspects. The remainder need enabling legislation or parliamentary approval.

FULL DISCUSSION

The Prime Minister was greeted with prolonged applause from his followers. He said the government sought approval from Parliament for the general terms of the treaty and then would refer it to the House in committee before introducing the necessary legislation. He said there would be the fullest discussion of tariff changes and their effect on Canada.

While certain schedules of the treaty were in force, they would cease to operate if Parliament turned down the treaty, Mr. King said. The government had power to reduce duties where a reciprocal concession was obtained from some other country and this was the authority for parts of the treaty being in operation.

Current Surplus Last Fiscal Year Is Over $1,100,000

Public Accounts For 1934-35 Reveal Widespread Improvement in Provincial Revenues; Surplus Instead of Anticipated Deficit on Current Account, But Relief Costs and Sinking Funds Add $6,648,000 to Debt

Figures showing the improvement noted in provincial revenues were presented to the British Columbia Legislature this afternoon, when Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, tabled public accounts for the year 1934-35.

The Finance Minister's statement showed that where he had budgeted for a deficit on current account of $2,117,000, he finished the year with a surplus of $1,164,175. This included provision for $250,000 in sinking funds and the retirement of $500,000 of serial debts.

This, however, was only the bright side of the picture, as the province spent $5,469,133 on unemployment relief, borrowed from the Dominion, and dropped behind another $2,343,000 in its sinking funds.

The net effect of this was that the province went behind in its finances $6,648,154 during the year 1934-35. This is an addition to the floating debt of the province.

The statement of current accounts was regarded as reflecting two things—careful budgeting by the Finance Department and a marked improvement in business which produces the provincial revenue.

NOTES OF THE LEGISLATURE

TOMORROW

Debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne commences. Speakers, Mrs. Paul Smith, Liberal, Burrard; E. T. Kenney, Liberal, Skeena.

The usual last-minute rush for seats at the opening took place this morning. This is always Mr. Speaker's big worry on opening day, although he starts to make preparations nearly a month before the session begins.

There are always a lot of visitors coming into the city who are terribly anxious to see the ceremony. And many residents make up their mind at the last hour that they want to be there.

It is the first time in many years that the Legislature has opened on a wintry scene. As a rule, the show is attended by Victoria's famous sunshine but it was a snow-covered lawn that greeted the Lieutenant-Governor on his arrival.

Perjury Charge As Hauptmann Aid

Counsel For Condemned Man Calls on New Jersey Officials to Bring to Trial M. Whited, Who Was Witness

Associated Press

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 25.—A demand that prosecution officials bring a perjury charge against Millard Whited, one of the chief witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, was made today by Lloyd Fisher, counsel for Hauptmann.

In a letter to Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck of Hunterdon County, Fisher said he wished Hauck "would proceed in the Whited case as you did in the Heier case."

He referred to Benjamin Heier, New York restaurant cashier, a Hauptmann defence witness, who was indicted in Hunterdon County for perjury at the Flemington trial.

Heier swore he was sitting in an automobile with a young woman the night of April 2, 1932, when the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was paid, and saw a man jump from the wall of St. Raymond's cemetery. The man, he said, was not Hauptmann. The state, in rebuttal, produced a witness who said that about the hour Heier testified he was in the Bronx

Ethiopia Partition Plan Report Denied

London Officials Say Rumors of Scheme For British-French-Italian Division of Territory Unfounded

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 25. — British authorities today firmly denied reports the British Government was considering a peace plan with Italy and France by which each of the three countries would receive a part of Ethiopia.

The reported peace plan, believed by the Havas News Agency to be "under official consideration, was said to provide for a division of Ethiopia among the three great powers in exchange for indemnity payments to Emperor Haile Selassie, who would retain sovereignty over Galla province and all Amharic Ethiopia.

The British position with regard to peace between Italy and Ethiopia remains as stated yesterday in the House of Commons by Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, namely, that the report of the League of Nations committee of five, drawn up last fall, represents a basis on which any further attempt at conciliation should be made

NOTE FROM ITALY

Associated Press

Rome, Feb. 25.—The Italo-British controversy over formation of a Mediterranean naval accord arose anew today with presentation of another Italian note at London, reiterating the Fascist protest against the five-power pact.

Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to Britain, handed the note to the London Foreign Office, it was announced here, asserting Italy maintained its viewpoint against the accord despite the British note of February 14, seeking to cut short the correspondence.

Premier Mussolini's government persisted in its attitude that Britain's action in lining up France, Greece, Turkey and Jugoslavia against any unprovoked Mediterranean attack was a personal action, therefore done outside the League of Nations and not in conformity with the League.

BASE DESTROYED

Addis Ababa, Feb. 25.—The Ethiopian government announced today that its troops had invaded the Italian colony of Eritrea, February 19, and destroyed an Italian base.

The base was described as located at Atmamaga on the Setit River near where the Sudan, Ethiopian and Eritrean borders meet.

The purported victory appeared to be a continuation of a northward thrust by Ethiopian troops in which the government said 668 Italians had been killed in two previous clashes.

"A strong detachment of Wolkait troops," said the communique describing the action, "made a night raid on Atmamaga, blew up an ammunition dump and burned four large storehouses and supplies.

"Keniazmatch Menguetou brought down an enemy plane near Kebita Wolkait, the second brought down by him since the war started.

"Villages east of Dessye were bombed yesterday without results."

The reported invasion was in addition to Ethiopian attacks near Aksum and Aduwa. Plank sorties west and northwest of Makale are expected to continue.

The communique announced confirmation of a raid by Ras Imru's forces near the holy city of Aksum, reporting 412 Italians were killed in that engagement.

"On the same day, January 13, another detachment surprised an important enemy column at Damot Guelila, near Aduwa, which fled leaving 256 dead and a large store of munitions" it said.

"On our side, two were killed."

"The losses to the forces of Ras Imru, cousin of Emperor Haile Selassie and governor of Gojjam Province, in the first action of his flying column of the north, were at fifty killed and 101 wounded.

PATROL ACTIONS

Rome, Feb. 25.—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported today sharp patrol actions and Italian aerial bombardment of Ethiopian forces on the northern front.

His communique said:

"There is intense patrol activity on the Eritrean front. Aviation bombed enemy groups south of Amba Alaji and in the Tembien area. On the Somaliland front, the situation is unchanged."

MORE TROOPS SENT

Naples, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press from Havas).—A small fleet of transports carrying men and supplies for both the Italian northern and southern armies in Ethiopia sailed from this port today.

The steamship Arabia was en route to Italian Somaliland with trucks, tractors and other war supplies. Also en route from the same destination were two transports with 3,500 soldiers and 160 officers aboard.

CANAL FIGURES

London, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press from Havas).—The Italo-Ethiopian war has increased traffic passing through the Suez Canal by 1,160,000 tons, it was reported here today. Statistics for 1935 show a total tonnage of 52,811,000 registered passing through the canal. Italian tonnage increased 191 per cent over 1934.

MANY SCORE BENNETT MOVE

Conservative Leader Sharply Criticized By Liberals When He Attacks Speaker

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25. — Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett this afternoon called attention of the House of Commons to what he "conceived to be a serious breach of the privileges of this House." He referred to an incident yesterday in connection with the resolution on nationalization of industries proposed by J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader.

Speaker Pierre Casgrain, said Mr. Bennett, had first ruled the Woodsworth resolution out of order and then, after Justice Minister Lapointe had stated the government had no objection to the motion being discussed, told Mr. Woodsworth to proceed.

If the Speaker was to thus bow to the wishes of the majority and change his ruling at its behest, the minority members of the House were nothing "better than slaves," said Mr. Bennett.

"FRIVOLOUS" MOVE

Mr. Lapointe said Mr. Bennett was directing repeated onslaughts at the Speaker and his objection today was "frivolous."

In the five years Mr. Bennett had been Prime Minister he had repeatedly instructed the Speaker and enforced his will on the House, the Justice Minister said.

Mr. Bennett arose, but could not make himself heard above shouts from the Liberal benches. He said he had a right to speak and stayed on his feet. When the noise subsided Mr. Bennett said Mr. Lapointe was inaccurate when he charged him with "instructing the speaker."

Mr. Lapointe replied Mr. Bennett had not only instructed but persecuted the former Speaker.

After Sir George Perley, Conservative, Argenteuil, had added his protest to that of Mr. Bennett, the incident ended.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL RETURNS

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 25.—The man who told the Flemington jury Bruno Richard Hauptmann "will be thawed cut when he hears that switch," sped back to New Jersey today to make sure the man convicted of killing the Lindbergh baby will not escape the chair.

Attorney-General David T. Wilentz was scheduled to arrive here from Florida late this afternoon to take from the shoulders of Hunterdon County Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck the burden of replying to Governor Harold G. Hoffman's attack on two of the state's witnesses against Hauptmann.

He is expected to confer at once with Hauck to get a first hand account of the latest developments in the case, which apparently he had regarded as settled when he went to Florida three weeks ago.

Hauptmann is under sentence to die the week of March 30, but prosecution officials believe another reprieve may be granted unless they act quickly to forestall further attacks on the case they presented against Hauptmann.

Wilentz called the reprieve granted by the Governor January 16 illegal, and said at that time he would oppose another unless circumstances should warrant it.

He is expected to tell the Governor the latter's attack on the integrity of the two state witnesses, Millard Whited and aged Amandus Hochmuth, is not grounded on fact.

LOOKS INTO EXTRADITION

The Governor has indicated he may seek legal advice on the validity of Hauptmann's extradition from the Bronx in view of his allegation that Whited, Sourlands Mountain logger, lied at the proceedings when he swore he had seen Hauptmann prowling in the woods near the Lindbergh estate shortly before the kidnapping March 1, 1932.

Rev. John Mathieson of Trenton, Hauptmann's spiritual advisor, yesterday evening in New York, quoted the condemned man as saying he believed Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon had testified against him unwillingly under police pressure.

York, and to the other members of the royal family, sincerest sympathy is extended.

"It is a matter of profound gratitude that His late Majesty King George V is succeeded by one who in pre-eminent degree has been nurtured and trained for the high position to which he is now called. I feel sure that the same loyalty and devotion which was extended to His late Majesty will also be extended to King Edward VIII.

"While there has been a steady improvement in business conditions, the international situation is of a very disquieting character. Situated as we are upon this continent, we are indeed fortunate, yet we cannot but view with grave concern world events of so great significance as are now transpiring.

"During the year a Dominion general election took place, and following the elections of the new government called a conference of the Dominion and the provinces of Canada to discuss important problems of mutual concern. The agenda covered a wide range of subjects and good progress was made. All of these important matters will be pursued to definite conclusions, and it is confidently felt that it will result in placing the provinces and the Dominion as a whole in more favorable position to efficaciously function in their respective spheres.

"In every branch of the provincial service during the past year there has been exceptional activity in a great variety of endeavor. Not only have the various departments met immediate matters in hand to the full extent of resources available, but the closest and most intimate study has been made of problems confronting us looking to future action. In respect of some of these matters legislation will be submitted for your consideration at the present session, but in respect of others it is thought that it will be desirable to call a session of the Legislature in the fall, when further information will be available which will insure the formulation of measures to best advantage, including measures to improve the position of the municipalities.

"Reports of the various departments of my government will be laid before you. The public accounts and estimates for the year will also be submitted for your consideration.

"In leaving you to your duties, I do so with confidence that you will meet them faithfully. May Divine Providence guide you in your deliberations."

The official forecast is for "strong winds or gales, mostly easterly on the gulf, and mild with snow or sleet."

E. B. Shearman, Dominion meteorologist, announced today an ocean storm is approaching the coast and milder weather is spreading over the province. Warnings have been issued for a southeast gale over the Strait of Juan de Fuca, which may extend to the Strait of Georgia.

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—British Columbia's extended winter has reduced logging operations in the coast area to 40 per cent of normal, logging officials here said today.

A number of camps have not reopened since the usual year-end shutdown and of those that resumed operations, 60 per cent have been forced to close again owing to the continued cold snap and heavy snowfall, which have curtailed the supply of logs.

The remaining camps which have kept operating are doing so under difficulty, while loggers, operators and employees, keep a weather eye cocked for signs of a break that will permit resumption of normal conditions.

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Word was received here today of the death in Los Angeles of David Alexander McKee, seventy-seven-year-old pioneer resident of Ladner, B.C., who took suddenly ill while vacationing in California.

CURRENT SURPLUS LAST FISCAL YEAR IS OVER $1,100,000

Where Mr. Hart had expected revenue from all sources totaling $19,492,791, he received $22,761,719, an increase of $3,269,000 over his estimate.

The revenue was $2,553,000 greater than it was in the year 1933-34.

On the other hand expenditures were held down inside the estimates, the statement showed. The total current account expenses were $21,597,543, $12,000 below the figure Mr. Hart had estimated. The total expenditure was $1,015,000 greater than in 1933-34, the year the administration changed.

The revenue side of the statement indicated the improvement in business which has kept the provincial treasury going on its current accounts.

Following is a comparative statement on the chief sources of revenue:

	Actual Revenue 1933-34	Estimated 1934-35	Actual 1934-35
Liquor profits	$2,314,324	$1,700,000	$2,487,323
Motor license fees	1,709,419	1,650,000	1,808,613
Dominion subsidies	874,561	874,561	1,624,561
Gasoline tax	2,055,234	2,000,000	2,264,196
Income tax	4,656,204	4,500,000	5,139,367
Succession duties	382,649	865,000	979,401

The comparison of the full current account is as follows:

	Revenue	Expenditure	Surplus or deficit
1933-34 (actual)	$20,208,859	$20,582,836	—$ 374,000
1934-35 (estimated)	19,492,791	21,609,637	— 2,117,000
1934-35 (actual)	22,761,719	21,597,543	+ 1,164,175

The reason for the increase in Dominion subsidies in the statement was because the first payment on the interim subsidy of $750,000, given in recognition of the province's better-terms claim, was made in 1934-35.

WINTER'S GRIP ON MILLIONS IS BROKEN TODAY

Drizzling rain and mild temperatures followed in the path of the blizzard, leaving roads and highways coated with slippery snow.

SAND ON SNOW

In the Sherbrooke district the ground was coated with a light-brown snow, discolored by sand which residents said appeared to fall with the snow.

Observatory officials said such occurrences were "uncommon, but not unusual."

All through eastern sections of the province and well down into the Maritimes, emergency crews were working to establish temporary connections on main communication lines.

EDEN HEARS NEW CRITICISM

But Tells British Commons He Cannot Report Naval Discussions

Canadian Press from Havas

London, Feb. 25.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was taunted with derisive cries of "Your lips are sealed!" from the opposition benches in the House of Commons today when he declared it would be "unwise" for him for the moment to divulge decisions taken at the Naval Conference.

"It has been our experience that it is unwise during a conference to make premature publications which sometimes have the effect of destroying the negotiations actually in progress," Mr. Eden told the House. "That certainly has been my experience more than once and no doubt it has been the experience of others in the House.

"But I'll give assurance that, as soon as a favorable moment arrives and I can take the House into fullest confidence as to the outcome of the conference, I'll do so."

The opposition's taunts re-echoed through the House at that point.

"The House can be sure I shall do my best to hasten that moment when, as has just been said, my lips will be unsealed," the Foreign Secretary continued.

"It is impossible to forecast the duration of the naval conference. Negotiations between the delegations are still in progress at this time. The House will understand if I ask them, under these circumstances, not to press me for details of the position which the conference has reached."

ization of "industrial, commercial and financial organizations and undertakings that are failing to function in the general interest."

Mr. Woodsworth talked out his own resolution at the eleven o'clock adjournment hour and it will not be debated again until later in the session. The Liberals and Conservatives who spoke were opposed to it and at least one Social Crediter said his group was against socialization of industry.

NO PATCHWORK WANTED

Mr. Euler, the only minister who spoke during the debate, admitted he was a public ownership man, but not to the extent outlined in the Woodsworth motion, which he believed went altogether too far.

Everyone would admit, said the minister, there were great concentrations of capital in Canada, but not so many as some members said. It also was admitted that sometimes these concentrations of capital acted contrary to the public interest. But the remedy, he said, was not socialization of isolated industries.

Under the terms of the Woodsworth resolution, one industry here and one there would be taken over by the government, which Mr. Euler believed would lead either to the plants reverting to private ownership or all industry being socialized.

DUTY AT TIMES

"In certain cases," Mr. Euler said, "Government intervention in business is an absolute necessity and duty . . . There are occasions—they exist today, I believe—when it becomes the duty of governments to intervene when a great business organization takes advantage of its power to oppress its workers or unduly exploit the consumer. If we have no statutes which enable the government to intervene it becomes the duty of the government to enact such laws so it can cope with the situation."

Later the minister said the government had every intention of meeting its obligations in this regard. His statement brought prolonged desk-pounding from Liberal members.

QUOTES INQUIRY REPORT

Mr. Woodsworth spoke of many disclosures of the price spreads commission as evidence the capitalistic system was working to the disadvantage of Canada. He referred to watered stock, false annual statements labor exploitation, low wages and stock control as evils that must be removed.

"If a man," continued Mr. Woodsworth, "steals a loaf of bread he is liable to be sent to jail, but it is quite possible a man may steal $1,000,000 from the public and be regarded as one of the pillars of society. I submit it is one of the responsibilities of this government to place in the Criminal Code such provisions as will enable the public to punish those who have so defrauded society and to seek the restitution of their ill-gotten gains."

BRITISH, GERMAN AND U.S. NAVAL PACT PROPOSED

ITALY'S REFUSAL

Word of the British-German-United States proposal came shortly after Italy had injected the Italo-Ethiopian war question into the naval conference as a fresh barrier to the achievement of a naval limitation treaty.

The Italian delegation notified the British, authoritative sources disclosed, that Premier Mussolini would decline to accept any new naval agreement until League of Nations war penalties on Italy were lifted.

The Italians also told the British, these sources said, that Il Duce would refuse to sign a naval treaty while British fleet units patrolled the Mediterranean.

This stand was interpreted in conference quarters as dealing a heavy blow to hopes for a new treaty to replace the Washington and London naval limitations treaties, denounced by Japan and expiring at the end of this year.

LIMITS FOR BIG SHIPS

Substance of the proposed agreement among Britain, the United States and Germany would be the same as that now under discussion among Great Britain, the United States, France and Italy in the present four-power conference, with battleships limited to 35,000 tons and fourteen-inch guns.

It is understood the agreement could be effected either in the form of a signed treaty or by an exchange of notes.

The original source for this information stated the agreement would not be an alliance.

Naval authorities said they felt a tri-power treaty, as a treaty, might not be acceptable to Washington on the grounds that it might appear the United States was taking sides in European affairs—that it would not desire to seem siding with Germany and Great Britain against France, Russia, Italy and other powers.

FRENCH POSITION

It was report authoritatively the British were "disgusted" with French opposition to the inclusion of Germany in the present naval conference and with the French demands for an Anglo-French air pact as the price of a French signature on a four-power naval conference treaty.

The Italian demands that Great Britain withdraw her fleet from the Mediterranean and that the League remove sanctions also annoyed the British.

Another high quarter said the British were "greatly disillusioned" by the recent Japanese withdrawal from the conference and that Japan's action had partially influenced today's proposal.

Another added reason for the proposal was surmised to be the fact that France and the United States have been in opposition to each other in the conference over the French demand that the maximum size of battleships be limited to 27,500 tons while the United States has been holding out for a 35,000-ton maximum.

OFFICIAL WORD AWAITED

Washington, Feb. 25.—The State Department said today it lacked official advices of London reports that Great Britain has proposed an Anglo-German-United States naval agreement in anticipation of the failure of the Four-power Naval Conference.

NEW SYRIAN CABINET SPLITS

Associated Press

Beirut, Syria, Feb. 25.—The new Nationalist cabinet of Premier Attal Ayoubi split today, two ministers refusing to take their posts unless France granted Syria a treaty of independence.

Count Damien de Martel, French High Commissioner, held a private meeting with the cabinet in an attempt to settle the question, while Ali Bek al Abed continued to act as president of the Syrian Republic under the French mandate.

Count de Martel addressed a letter to Premier Atta Bey el Ayudi promising the release of students and others arrested during the Nationalist demonstrations in order to facilitate the new government's task.

When the Lieutenant-Governor had finished, the House proceeded to its own business.

Prayers were said by Rt. Rev. H. E. Sexton, Bishop-Coadjutor of Columbia.

RESIGNATIONS REPORTED

The first business of Mr. Speaker after announcing that he had "obtained a copy of His Honor's speech to prevent mistakes, was to report upon the two resignations since the last session.

These were of G. G. McGeer, K.C., from Burrard and A. M. Manson, K.C., from Omineca, formal record of the vacancies being entered on the journals of the House.

Premier Pattullo then moved a resolution of condolence and loyalty to King Edward VIII, which was seconded by Rev. Robert Connell, Leader of the Opposition.

A standing silent vote was taken to pass the motion as it was for a similar vote of condolence to Queen Mary.

FIRST BILL

The formality of introducing the people's business as the first act of the session took place. Attorney-General Gordon Sloan brought in a bill to amend the Court of Appeal Act.

Then followed the traditional resolutions to take up the Speech From the Throne at the next sitting, to have the votes and proceedings printed and to have standing committees appointed. Departmental reports were presented and the House adjourned until 2.30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

The debate will be opened tomorrow by Mrs. Paul Smith, Liberal, Burrard, moving the address in reply to the Speech From the Throne. She will be followed by F. T. Kenney, Liberal, Skeena.

Canada Exporting Oats to Britain

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 25.—Malcolm MacDonald, Dominions Secretary, is in communication with the Canadian Government as to increased exports to the United Kingdom of Canadian oats. This was revealed to the House of Commons yesterday by Minister of Agriculture Walter Elliot.

Major Sir Ronald Ross, Conservative, asked whether the government was satisfied with the present situation regarding increased imports of Canadian oats—whether it felt the position was satisfactory to United Kingdom oats growers.

Mr. Elliot said he was not in a position to make a statement since the Dominions Secretary was dealing with the question at the moment.

Major Ross asked if the minister knew Canada's exports of oats to the United Kingdom last year were greater than ever before. "Was that in accordance with existing treaties?" he pressed.

"The member will realize that while the matter is under consideration it would be very unwise for me to express an opinion," replied Mr Elliot.

Central Bank's Work Reviewed

designed to live and prosper by the interchange of commodities and services, almost every possible effort has been made to hamper or prohibit such interchange."

It was the first annual meeting of shareholders. The bank was opened March 11, 1935. A balance sheet was presented showing operations up to December 31, 1935.

SHAREHOLDERS TOTAL 11,000

The Bank of Canada's capital stock of $5,000,000, as at the end of 1935, was owned by 11,031 shareholders with an average of 9.07 shares each. The bank started with notes in circulation worth $42,440,000 and at the end of the year this figure had reached $99,677,000, of which $40,497,000 was in the hands of chartered banks and $59,179,000 in public hands, in savings banks and other institutions.

NOTES AND DEPOSITS

"The fact that our note issue is so much smaller than the old Dominion note issue," Mr. Towers said, "has occasioned some misunderstanding. The combined total of our notes and chartered banks' deposits with us is the figure which should be used when making comparisons with cash statistics antedating our opening."

Legal tender in the hands of the banks and the public on March 10, 1935, the day before the central bank opened, amounted to $257,000,000, Bank of Canada notes in circulation at December 31, 1935, plus chartered bank deposits with the central bank amounted to $281,000,000.

In spite of the costs of organization, printing of new currency, depreciation in the price of silver and other "new expenses" the bank declared the maximum dividend allowed (4½ per cent) for its first year of operation. There was a total of $764,228 available for that purpose, the surplus accruing to the Dominion treasury.

REGULATION OF CREDIT

Mr. Towers described the chief functions of a central bank as "to endeavor to regulate the volume of credit, to defend the external value of the monetary unit, to be a ready source of skilled and impartial advice to the governments (Dominion and provincial), and to afford timely co-operation with central banks of other countries."

A central bank's influence on the volume of credit arises from its power to affect the volume of commercial banks' cash reserves, Mr. Towers said. When a country is not on the gold standard the central bank can not only affect the commercial banks' cash reserves—it determines them.

"Chartered banks' cash reserves on December 31, 1935, were slightly larger than on December 31, 1929, the closing month of a year of exceptionally active business. Their deposits at the end of 1935 were less than 2 per cent smaller than on the same date in 1929," Mr. Towers said.

SIZE OF INCOMES

"This comparison will serve to remind us that the volume of money is not the cardinal factor which determines the volume of business. The vital matter is not the amount of money in existence; it is the size of people's incomes—the size of the national income. An increased turnover of existing monetary supplies takes place as prosperity returns, and the total amount of money may be less than during a depression."

With Canadian currency off the gold standard and unstabilized, the Bank of Canada had no specific obligation imposed on it by the government regarding exchange values. Nevertheless this was a situation calling for the bank's close consideration.

CO-OPERATION

On the subject of co-operation with other central banks Mr. Towers said all co-operation, whether it took place in the realm of trade or finance, was usually a question of common-sense. Co-operation had been freely accorded.

"In all the criticism of the existing order which we hear today," the governor said,"—and I am not a reactionary in this respect—I think too little weight is given to the fact that the world's business structure has apparently survived a period during which international common-sense has been conspicuous by its absence. The structure must possess great inherent strength.

"In a world designed to live and prosper by the interchange of commodities and services almost every possible effort has been made to hamper or prohibit such interchange. Few countries are more dependent than Canada on international trade.

"In our own interest we must welcome and encourage any loosening of the shackles which have been placed on world business during the years since the war. I hope the recovery in world trade of which there is now evidence can be stimulated by appropriate measures of international co-operation between governments."

The rediscount rate of 2½ per cent in effect ever since the bank opened is the same as that charged for advances under the Finance Act before the bank was created. While it is considerably higher than treasury bill rates, the governor said this was not of particular significance since when money is plentiful the need for rediscount facilities seldom arises. The central bank should be looked on as "the lender of last resort."

Some of the most useful services of a central bank would likely never be known, he said. If a threatened boom and subsequent depression were prevented by action of the central bank no person would know from what the country had been saved. Only failure to act in time would attract attention.

OBSTACLES IN WAY OF FLOOR

B.C. Agricultural Association Head Says Difficulties Facing Horse Show Plan

While not thoroughly informed on the cost of building, instilling and removing a moveable floor in the Horse Show Building to convert it into a sports arena, Dr. S. F. Tolmie, president of the British Columbia Agricultural Association today, expressed the opinion those charges would exceed revenue to the association.

He was emphatically in favor of using the exhibition buildings to the greatest extent, but feared costs would be excessive.

Dr. Tolmie explained the buildings were usually rented to various interests on a basis of 20 per cent of the take from any function.

"The costs of removals and installations would burn a big hole in that revenue," he commented. "Naturally I'd like to see sport fostered. And I'd like to see the buildings used as often as possible. I'm strongly in favor of their use. But you must keep within revenue."

His statement followed announcement of difficulties over the conversion of the building into a sports arena. A moveable floor, it was stated, would cost $3,500 to build, and its removal each time would cost another $200. There were further obstacles in the way of flooring, in as much as a floor might interfere with equestrian events.

Further data would have to be secured by the directors of the association before they could make any recommendation to the council on the matter, it was learned.

NEW PROGRESS IS FORESEEN

Industrial Development to Follow Period of Scientific Gain, Says Speaker

"It is quite possible that in laboratories throughout the world experiments are going on that will have far more influence on the destiny of the human race than anything Hitler or Mussolini can do." Professor G. M. Shrum of the faculty of the University of British Columbia told an audience of 100 at last night's University Extension Society lecture at Girls' Central School.

Professor Shrum traced the developments of pure science, and the industrial and social results which had come out of them.

Although the universe dated back 1,000 million billion years, the earth 1,750,000,000 years, life 1,000,000,000 years, mammal life 50,000,000 years and man possibly 1,000,000 years, true experimental science was only little more than 400 years old.

FIRST SCIENTIST

It was Copernicus who, as the first exponent of the theory that the earth was not the centre of the universe, revitalized the thinking of man, and gave the impulse to scientific development.

Professor Shrum, as an indication of the relatively small place of the first scientist in the estimation of humanity, quoted the fact that there were six inmates of Essondale who believed themselves to be Napoleon, and not one who claimed to be Copernicus.

Galileo was the man who introduced scientific experiment on the impulse of poCernicus, and Sir Isaac Newton showed the importance of applying the laws of mathematics to experiment.

This was the first great period of scientific progress. It dated from the middle of the sixteenth to the end of the seventeenth century.

FOUR MAIN PERIODS

There were four such periods in the world's history up to the present time.

The second began in the first years of the nineteenth century, with such figures as Thomas Young and Michael Faraday, the latter, one of the greatest experimenters the world ever knew, being the discoverer of the basic principles of electric energy.

The third period, and probably the most important, said Professor Shrum, was from 1895 to 1905, and included Roentgen's discovery of the X-ray, J. J. Thompson's discovery of the negative electron, Einstein's first theory of relativity, and work by other scientists on radioactivity.

This period was responsible to a large extent for the present industrial development of the world.

The fourth great period started in 1925 and probably would conclude this year.

FIFTH PERIOD SOON

Professor Shrum believed that in line with the steady lessening of the gap between these spurts of scientific development another such period would begin in five or six years.

The fourth period had seen the investigation of the internal structure of the atom, the discovery of heavy hydrogen, the discovery of the neutron and the positive electron and the production of artificial radioactivity.

Drawing the contrast between the last two periods, Professor Shrum pointed out that the third had seen the investigation of the external structure of the atom, and the fourth that of its internal structure. In the third Mme. Curie had discovered natural radioactivity in the form of radium. In the fourth her daughter Mme. Joliot, had discovered artificial radioactivity. The X-ray had come from the third period, and a new radiation, represented by the neutron out of the fourth.

INDUSTRIAL OUTCOME

Of the industrial developments which had sprung from the third period, Professor Shrum mentioned the spectrum identification of substances; the thermionic tube on which radio, sound amplification and the rectification of electric current are based; the photoelectric cell—the "electric eye" of oil-testing apparatus, of burglar alarms, and the jack of all trades which counts cigars, regulates the flow of sugar syrup or opens doors.

Indirectly out of this age of scientific development had come all the commonplaces of modern life: the modern automobile, the streamlined train, the airplane.

Radio he termed "the greatest boon to the human race scientists ever put out."

As an example of the uses of modern science, Dr. Shrum quoted the case of the Trail Smelter, which had been faced with lawsuits from damage done by its fumes to farmers' crops. The scientists had been called in, and now the fumes were recovered and converted into fertilizer, which was sold to the same farmers to develop the same crops.

Of the direction of the progress which future industry would enjoy at the conclusion of the present time of development, Professor Shrum would prophesy nothing. But he could say that the depression had sent the real brains of the world into the universities, where they were being trained against the great industrial advance.

Canada, he said, was lucky in having as its neighbor the United States, which had been able to afford to import the leading scientists of the old world to develop the well-trained material in its own universities, and which would lead the world in the new era of industrial development.

At the conclusion of his address, Dr. Shrum gave demonstrations with thermionic tubes, photoelectric cells, and ultra-violet light.

Ether Experiments Shed New Light

Calculations Show It May Really Exist; Previous Formula May Be in Error

Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Feb. 25.—The possibility of real existence of the hypothetical "ether," an invisible medium filling all space, was revived today by some new mathematical calculations presented to the American Physical Society.

W. B. Cartmell of the University of Montreal showed computations that the formula by which existence of "ether" has been ruled out may be in error. His calculations go back to the great experiment begun in 1884 by Michelson and Morley. Taken by Einstein and most other scientists as proving there was no ether, these two measured the "ether drift."

The experiment was like measuring the water passing a boat being rowed in the moving current of a river. The water would pass the boat faster when it was rowed upstream than downstream, if the rowing was at the same rate.

Light, this experiment held, should act like the water, because it travels as pulsations in ether, and the earth is moving through the ether. The earth's known motion is about eighteen miles a second.

Michelson and Morley set up an interferometer, a cross, at whose centre a beam of light was split, so that half of it traveled at right angles to the other half out to the end of the cross bars. These split beams were reflected back. At the point where they reunited they should show "fringes" of color, if there was a difference in their velocity if one direction as compared with the other.

There was a difference. But it was far less than expected—so much less that the experiment was adjudged as showing no ether existed.

Dr. Dayton Miller of the Case School of Applied Science has been science's "Doubting Thomas" for twenty-five years, repeating this experiment to show the tiny effect obtained was nevertheless real.

EXPERT'S VIEW

Mr. Cartmell's calculations today are to the effect that the original experimenters should not have expected the big "effect," which they never got. They should have expected only a tiny one, just about the kind that Dr. Miller gets.

Challenges of the accuracy of the mathematics on which expectations of the big "effect" rested have been made before and have not stood the test of rigid examination. Other physicists will go over Mr. Cartmell's calculations as has been done with previous challengers.

A Different, Safer Dentifrice
DENTAL authorities warn against harsh tooth cleansers. For a modern formula which meets every need for a safe tooth whitener, use Listerine Tooth Paste. It works fast. But so gently that it is especially recommended for conditioning the gums. Your dentist will tell you that brushing the gums is at least as important as brushing the teeth. Try a tube of this super-gentle dentifrice. It's milder, but it does the trick. It has a taste you will like because it contains no soap-flavor which needs to be disguised. That's why it is different from most other tooth pastes, since most of them contain soap. Lambert Pharmacal Co., (Canada), Ltd.

NEXT SUNDAY'S BROADCAST

NEXT SUNDAY KING EDWARD WILL deliver his first radio message to the peoples of the Britannic Commonwealth of Nations, and, of course, it will be heard practically all over the globe. Those Victorians who are up and around at 8 o'clock in the morning and tune in will be able to hear what His Majesty has to say. So far no hint as to the subject he has chosen for his short discourse has been made public. But if the King's previous broadcasts—when he was Prince of Wales—may be taken as any criterion, we may be sure it will be of a practical nature.

Considerable interest seems to be manifest in the United States. The people of the neighboring republic have a very warm regard for the new monarch, as they had for his late father. Only a few years ago he was among them and, apparently, delighted them with his free and easy manner, his democratic bearing and his keen interest in all that has gone to make up the amazing progress of the New World.

It may be fitting to quote, perhaps, from a round-table discussion by well-known writers on world affairs to which The Editor and Publisher of New York gave prominence recently. We select one who took part, Mr. Frazier Hunt, who has had a most colorful career, but who shines in the firmament of those wandering journalists who "pick up" all the news they can and store it in the vaults of their memory for future use, naturally letting some of it go as the signs of the times dictate.

Frazier Hunt knows King Edward intimately—and this is what he says of the man who will talk to the world next Sunday: "This new King has a vast understanding of all Europe and all the world, and knows most of the rulers of the world, and I have, as I say, an inexplicable belief that, somehow or other, this will work toward a better relationship with European powers, and possibly might work out some way for peace in Europe."

The chairman of the discussion then asked Mr. Hunt whether he thought history would rate Edward the Eighth as the "Great Liberal King." To this question Mr. Hunt replied as follows: "I think he will certainly rate as the King of the lowly people of England. The war taught him. He went into the war when he was eighteen, came out at twenty-two, nervous, shy, a boy who had seen a great deal of war at close hand, and who was deeply touched by this terrible slaughter. Ever since then he has been very deeply interested in the welfare of the most lowly people and the forgotten people of England, and the people of England themselves, the lowest working people and the unemployed, have a mystical faith that somehow this man is their friend, and will be their King in a way that no other King has ever been."

There is abundant evidence that the new monarch, recognizing, as is only natural, his constitutional limitations, will use every opportunity that may be available to plead the cause of those who are in need. As Mr. Frazier Hunt quite truly says, "the lowest working people and the unemployed, have a mystical faith that somehow this man is their friend." It is safe to say he will be.

CANADA'S APPLES

FROM GENERATION UNTO GENERATION we have been told that "an apple a day will keep the doctor away." It is not for us to enter into a dissertation as to the truth, or otherwise, of this old adage. But we can argue that the apple is a fruit of ancient origin. In fact, according to Mr. R. E. Robinson, Assistant Chief of the Markets Division, Fruit Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, references to the apple and its merits are found in the most ancient writings. At the beginning of the Christian era, the Romans knew and cultivated twenty-nine varieties of apples, some of which were carried to England and the west coast of Europe, and, more recently, to North America.

The first plantings of apple trees in Canada were made by the pioneer French settlers in the provinces of Nova Scotia and Quebec over 300 years ago. With the general growth of Canada the production of apples has so progressed that the apple tree is now one of the most widely distributed of fruit trees in the provinces where fruit is grown on a commercial basis, and growers and business men recognize the fact that the apple orchard is one of the most profitable investments on the farm.

It is interesting to know, too, that the area in Canada over which apples are grown successfully is extensive, consisting of five important commercial growing districts, which extend from the Pacific to the Atlantic oceans. There are the Interior valleys of British Columbia, Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia, the St. John River Valley of New Brunswick, the mountain districts surrounding the Island of Montreal in the province of Quebec, and the Lake Front district of Ontario, including the Niagara Peninsula.

Apple production is now such an extensive commercial enterprise that growers are obliged to utilize up-to-date, scientific cultural methods in order to meet popular merchandizing demands. Important contributions in research and experimentation have been made in apple culture by the Dominion experimental farms and Canadian agricultural colleges.

Fortunately for Canadian exporters, especially to the British market, the science which enters into the business of packing apples has been learned. No longer do Canadian apples go into the markets of the world with the outside contents of the case, as what is called "square." In keen competition, whether it be apples or any other commodity, Canada can not afford to be "sloppy" in the matter of packing. After all, we are living in an age of cellophane, and cellophane seems to have put even all other forms of packing to shame. It has become a standard of perfect delivery under all heads.

SOME RAILWAY CHEER

FACTS THAT WILL AID INTELLIGENT discussion of Canada's railway problem were presented by Mr. S. W. Fairweather, director of the Canadian National Railways Bureau of Economics in an address to the Moncton Rotary Club the other day. It was the first check-up on the situation for some time, as Mr. Bennett, while Prime Minister, enforced silence on the executives of the public railroad.

Mr. Fairweather said the cash deficit of the C.N.R. system was $47,000,000 yearly, as against $300,000,000 for the French railways. Between 1923 and 1931 the C.N.R. met all operating expenses and paid some interest on capital. During the next three years, worst of the depression, it met all expenses except interest. In 1934 it showed a slight return on invested capital account. The 1935 figures indicated further improvement. Much of the mileage was not built to operate at a profit, but to unite the nation. If an adjustment of capital were made on that account the Canadian National system would show a profit on investment throughout the years ranging from 1.3 per cent to 3.1 per cent, without the write-down of a single dollar for the bankrupt condition of some of the properties when the government had to take them over. These lines then had been a billion dollars in debt; in addition to which they were $250,000,000 in arrears in their upkeep as efficient going concerns. A financial man reporting on the condition thus set out would say the business was profitable, but over-capitalized.

As for taxes, Mr. Fairweather said that directly and indirectly the C.N.R. paid $21,000,000 a year and the C.P.R. $14,000,000. He argued the operating ratio of the C.N.R., due to special reasons, was higher than that of the C.P.R., but the operating efficiency was not lower. He admitted some of the $423,000,000 spent on capital expenditures since 1923 had not been wisely spent, but this had not been spent more unwisely than in the case of other companies and private individuals. Altogether, the expenditures had made possible savings in operation costs amounting to $12,000,000 a year.

Conclusions drawn by Mr. Fairweather were that if traffic returns were to approach the 1927 level, the cash deficit, interest included, on the C.N.R. system, overloaded as it is, would disappear. He said he had faith enough in Canada to believe that the depression would pass, that the level of business activity would reach former levels and thus the C.N.R. would demonstrate a very considerable earning power. This is cheering news for Canadians, who, during the last few years, have become increasingly nervous over the railroad problem and its relation to national finance.

"FREEDOM"

"We are apt to think more of doing what we like than of doing what we ought. In a word, we are apt to put our rights so far before our duties as to forget that under any sound system of society the enjoyment of rights should depend upon the fulfilment of duties."—Mr. J. L. Garvin, Editor of The London (England) Observer.

THE ABOVE EXTRACT IS TAKEN from "Freedom," a book in which many well-known men express their views on a question which in these days of dictatorships is being keenly discussed. On the subject, Sir Ernest Benn, a well-known British publisher and writer of repute, says: "May I make this simple suggestion: That we try to think about freedom in the abstract. For a few minutes each day let us give up thinking about the price of herrings, the speed of motor cars, the rate of exchange or slum clearance, and think only of freedom—its vitalizing qualities, its moral values, its character-building capabilities, its inspiration and its divine power. Then, if we will, we may turn back to our herrings, motors, currencies and slums, but we shall not do so many silly things about them as we have done in the last twenty years, since we ceased to understand the value of our freedom."

After all, freedom is the basis of character; liberty engenders self-respect; control, other than self-control, promotes the inferiority complex. To quote Mr. J. A. Spender, that most able editor of the old Westminster Gazette—now no longer the "green sheet" on the streets of London—"Each generation is called upon to find its own balance between the contending principles of liberty and authority, but I believe it to be true that civilization progresses in so far as on the whole liberty gains on authority. We seem in these times to be in a phase of reaction from liberty. War has familiarized us with authority, and the far-spreading unrest which has followed has made us timid about social order. Liberty is assailed from the right and from the left; in the name of advanced thinking we are asked to embark upon courses which are as perilous to liberty as the frank and open assault on it by avowed reactionaries."

It would seem that this book, "Freedom," should be of value to those who belong to debating societies, literary circles, and such organizations as permit thoughtful speech, because "freedom" in varied forms is a constant theme of earnest consideration.

What Other Papers Say

FRANCE'S BUMPTIOUS ROYALISTS
The London Advertiser

In France the royalists are a small but noisy and bad-mannered minority, their opponents are not safe from violent attack. They spend much of their time fighting among themselves for they are split into factions favoring the return of Bonapartist, Orleanist, or Bourbon pretenders. The rest of the time they are busy staging violent "protest" meetings, or attacking meetings of other groups.

A NICE BALANCE
The Regina Leader-Post

The Canadian people will not want the government interfering in a way that might damage the efficiency of the C.N.R. At the same time the C.N.R. must not be run in a manner that will bankrupt the country. The government has to find the money to pay many of the bills and naturally has to protect itself.

A FAIRER DEAL FOR THE FARMER
The Calcutta Statesman

There is room beyond doubt for more industrialization in India, but the prime necessity is to raise the purchasing power of the agricultural masses and to give a fairer deal to the man in the field. This will hardly be secured by a policy which by discouraging imports through a high tariff level will also discourage the export of India's primary products.

Loose Ends

A fiendish revenge is attempted—an innocent Scot is almost poisoned, but not quite—no one can tell how many potatoes equal Miss Garbo—and we say farewell.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

CRUEL REVENGE

THIS IS POSITIVELY the last time that any haggis will get into this column. It has to get in this one last time, because some haggis has just got into me. And thereby hangs a grisly tale.

The other morning a neat round parcel arrived in the mail for me. My newspaper colleagues, feeling the dead weight of it and noting the size and shape, agreed that it was a bomb: probably from the Burns Club or Mrs. Noggins. They fled out of the room, leaving me to deal with it. Recklessly I opened it and at first I thought their fears were well grounded. The object inside certainly had the round, hard appearance of a bomb and weighed more. You have guessed. It was a haggis.

No comment with it, no explanation. Just an unwritten challenge from one Scot to another. I knew, then, that I must eat it or forever hold my peace. I knew that if I failed to eat it no Scotsman would ever admit kinship with me again.

It was an awful revenge that the Burns Club had contrived. (We Scots are a hard race). A synthetic Scot had urged the Burns Club to ignore me and I wish it had followed her excellent advice. Well, there was only one thing for a brave Scot to do. Having made my will and instructed my solicitor about the disposition of my affairs, I sat down last night to eat my haggis. I had never seen one before in real life, with its round shiny bulbous look, like a bloated face three days drowned, I felt slightly seasick at the spectacle. I touched it with a spoon, but it would not yield an inch. Gingerly I thrust the point of a carving knife into it, and the hideous contents sprawled out, as if I had stabbed a fat man in the abdomen. Closing my eyes and thinking hard of Bannockburn and Robert Bruce's spider, I lifted the innards of the haggis to my mouth.

TRUE VICTORIAN

NO ONE WILL BELIEVE THIS, of course, but the haggis tasted fine. I knew as soon as I tasted it that I really was a Scot at heart, a question which had bothered me for some time. I knew, too, that this was one of our Victorian haggae (plural of the noun haggis). I could tell by its superior taste that it was not one of those imported, spurious imitations from Vancouver, with the McGoer flavor, such as were palmed off on the Burns Club recently. I knew that this was the genuine article and I was sorry if I had ever said anything unintentionally unkind about this great chieftain of the puddin' race. I ate the entire haggis at one sitting.

Apart from a slight drowsiness, a kind of gentle stupor, some red spots before my eyes, a slight stagger and a numbness of the extremities, I felt fine after eating the haggis. I would have slept soundly but for a persistent cramp, which I attributed to excessive exercise sewing wood. When I awakened this morning with a high fever, I knew I had contracted some serious malady. If it weren't for that haggis, fortifying me against disease, I said, I should probably have been dead by now. But as the day wore on and I lost the power of speech, I began to think that the Burns Club had achieved a horrible and complete revenge. I expressed a faint wish to be buried at Royal Oak.

A well-known Scot, a man in a high official position, came in to see me just before I entered a coma. He broke down at the sight of my enfeebled condition and confessed that he had sent me the haggis. He said he didn't expect it to harm me. He said there was no poison in it, only the usual inedible inner organs of animals. He said he had thought I was a real Scot and could take it.

"I did take it," I said. "I took the whole thing, complete at one sitting"

His eyes opened with horror.

"You don't mean you ate the whole haggis yourself?" he gasped.

"Yes," I said, whispering faintly "I ate it all."

"Poor fellow," said he, with a white face. "I've killed you. Man, you don't eat much of that at one time, you know. That haggis was enough for ten stout men. I'm sorry. I meant to teach you a lesson. I didn't mean to kill you. It's a pity. I must go and tell the Burns Club."

But I fooled the Burns Club. I recovered. I am a better Scot than any of them.

EXCHANGE

A UNITED STATES Senator has proposed to erect a tariff on foreign movie stars. He says that if Sweden is to export a valuable piece of goods like Garbo to the United States, then Sweden should take in return some valuable United States goods. In the same way, Germany should be compelled to buy something in return for the United States' purchase of Dietrich, and Russia should do the same for Sten. The problem confronting the Senator who brought this question up was the value of these ladies in terms of exportable goods. That is, how many potatoes should the United States expect to sell to Sweden in return for buying Garbo? How many corn-fed hogs is Dietrich worth? How many bags of flour equal Miss Sten?

This is an extremely delicate calculation. On box office returns Miss Garbo should be worth millions of tons of potatoes, the labor of thousands of farmers. Miss Dietrich should be equal to hundreds of trainloads of hogs. Whole elevators of flour would hardly equal Miss Sten.

On the other hand, if the calculation is tackled from the standpoint of ordinary human requirements, the answer is entirely different. A hungry man would not take Miss Garbo for a single potato, or even half a one. After a hard day in the woods I have often found a single pork chop with good brown gravy infinitely more attractive than Miss Dietrich. When it comes to flour I would not trade a pancake for all the Stens in Europe.

Altogether, the problem of valuing these ethereal creatures in tangible, earthly terms, is too complicated. The United States will probably have to keep them and its potatoes, hogs and flour as well. This, since it means the retention of real wealth within the country, is a grave disaster under the existing system of trade, but nothing can be done about it. Thus it is proved again that women are at the bottom of all our troubles.

FAREWELL

THE LEGISLATURE is opening today. It is a sad occasion. It means six weeks' imprisonment for a lot of us. It means that this column must be reformed, temporarily, to record things of importance, speeches of hon. members, orations on debts, taxes, the P.G.E., bovine tuberculosis, and the like. It means that there will be no more haggis and similar light and airy persiflage in this space. (Did I call haggis light and airy?). We shall have to get down to business here until the spring and save the country. After that we can wreck it all over again. Until then, we who are about to go through the gates of prison say farewell to our free men. If you care to come across the Bay and view such dismal spectacles, we'll be seeing you in jail.

Bids are being asked by the city for 400,000 square yards of street construction and asphalt paving, or in all, nearly twelve miles of roadway. The work is approximately one-half of that which the city will order this year. It is the largest contract for street paving ever called for by city officials.

SOCIAL CREDIT IN ALBERTA

To the Editor:—Since I have come to British Columbia I have read in several newspapers that the people of Alberta are calling for their basic dividends.

I would like to inform the people of this province that it is not the people who voted to help Social Credit that are asking for their dividends. They know that the change cannot be made as easy as that.

It is the opposition who is out to do both Social Credit and the Alberta government harm that are calling for dividends. They sure are making a lot of noise over it, too.

I am still convinced that Mr. Aberhart has the majority of the people behind him.

According to the report that Major C. H. Douglas gave the Alberta government last May, it is quite possible for one province to introduce Social Credit.

STATE HEALTH INSURANCE

To the Editor:—It is an acknowledged fact that the working-man pays the bulk of the taxes of the country, and as the majority of them earn less than $1,800 a year, they will, should this insurance bill get by, be compelled to carry a yet heavier load.

This surely is not a time for any political party to add more taxes, the opposite should be its endeavor. The vote polled by a new party in the last election shows clearly how even staid supporters of the old parties are changing their opinions and intend to get redress. The humanitarian angle is very nice, but for whom? To find employment for members of an overcrowded profession, or for the person paying for it?

The plea that the $1,800-a-year-man does not pay his doctor's bill is absurd, as the Credit Granters' Association would show—it is usually the better paid that are lax in this respect. A family man drawing wages of $1800 a month, after paying a sales tax on every article needed in the home pays additional taxes for his amusements, house, light, water, lodge and insurance, which is already more than his fat salary can really stand. It is now suggested that he be compelled to pay, in addition, for health insurance, as much as he pays for his light and water or life insurance—three vital necessities.

It would be interesting to know how many of those advocating the suggested bill have an axe to grind.

THE SABBATH

To the Editor:—Several letters on the above subject have created quite a discussion among your readers.

And we are still left with the eternal truth, that Jehovah said, "The Seventh Day Is the Sabbath." This is not one day in seven, but "The Seventh Day," which one writer points out in Deuteronomy v 12, as "The Sabbath," and in Ezekiel xx 12, as "My Sabbath," keeping them in contact with the Lord, who sanctifies them. Because the Lord has declared "My Sabbath Is Holy, Just and Good."

It is not correct that "God's own Son could be counted worthy to have His work placed in splendid antithesis to the work of the Creator." Because Jesus said, "I and my Father are one." He never worked in opposition to His Father. And the Apostle Paul teaches very clearly that the Son was the Creator. Hebrews i 2, 3, "He made the worlds and upholdeth all things by the word of His power." And also in John i 3, "Without Him was not anything made that was made."

Cardinal Gibbons said: "You may read the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, and you will not find a single line authorizing the sanctification of Sunday. The scriptures enforce the religious observance of Saturday, a day which we never sanctify." Faith of our Fathers, page 3.

Priest Enright, CSSR, President Redemptorist College, said: "The Bible commands you to keep the Sabbath Day, Sunday is not the Sabbath Day, no man dare assert that it is, for the Bible says a plainly as words can make it that 'the seventh day is the Sabbath,' i.e., Saturday for we know Sunday to be the first day of the week. Besides the Jews have been keeping the Sabbath unto the present day. I am not a rich man, but I will give $1,000 to any man who will prove by the Bible alone that Sunday is the day we are to keep. No, it can not be done, it is impossible.

The Baptist view: "There was and is a commandment to 'Keep holy the Sabbath Day,' but that Sabbath Day was not Sunday. There is no scriptural evidence of the change of the Sabbath institution from the seventh to the first day of the week." Rev. E. T. Hiscox, D.D., author of Baptist Manual.

Professor Odlum, British Israel lecturer, Vancouver, B.C., said: "We keep the first day of the week because we are wrong, we have followed the Baptist Church from early ages. No quibbling or explaining can make the Sabbath Day of rest, as instituted at the beginning, any other than the seventh. And the first can never be the seventh."

SWIMMING LEAGUE ARGUMENT

To the Editor: — The Victoria Amateur Swimming Club did "unanimously" decide to withdraw from the Vancouver Island Swimming League, which supposedly was formed to bring three clubs closer together, but finally becoming a means for a two against one difference of opinions on many subjects.

I should very much like to know what might stand in the way of the V.A.S.C.'s withdrawal from the league, unless it is the fact that the league cannot get along without their money. To my mind the V.A.S.C. will be far better off, being out of the league, as they will be able to use profits obtained by successful galas run on V.A.S.C. money, to their own advantage and interests.

It is stated that the Pacific and Y.M.C.A. swimming clubs have been having friendly galas, but it is also noticed by many that the V.A.S.C. was never invited to compete in any of these, which might of course be an oversight, but on the other hand it appears to most to be as stated before—two clubs against one.

There was an international gala held here on February 8th, which was a financial loss.

The clubs were asked to suggest the events they wanted; the V.A.S.C. left their portion at six out of twenty-six, finally ending up with one. All events the V.A.S.C. asked for were chances for Canadian records, which were completely erased or changed. What was their use of asking?

The V.A.S.C. have such prominent members as Monica Tromp, Yvonne Squire, Bob Moss and many other well-known swimmers.

The reason for omitting the events is obvious. An impartial outlook on swimming affairs would justify your kind co-operation in printing this letter.

CITY SOON MAY SELL GASOLINE

Winnipeg Council Explores Proposal to Prevent High Prices

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—Winnipeg's city council was moving today toward putting the city in the gasoline business to prevent high prices.

With the city council voting 11 to 5 to investigate the proposal, the legislation committee started to explore for facts and figures.

The committee also will prepare an amendment to the Winnipeg city charter for submission to the Manitoba Legislature empowering the city to engage in the business of "dealing in gasoline, oil and petroleum products, and generally to conduct the business of gasoline service stations where these products can be sold retail."

Mayor Queen, M.P.P., supported the proposal at yesterday evening's meeting of the council.

London Paper Asks Where A. Hugenberg, Ex-Nazi, Is; Not Missing, Says Berlin

Canadian Press from Havas

London, Feb. 25.—Reich refugee circles here experienced considerable interest in reports widely circulated in the British Capital at the week-end concerning the mysterious disappearance of Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, supporter of Chancellor Hitler in his rise to power, who later split with his chief.

Dr. Hugenberg's disappearance was reported in The New Statesman in an article entitled "What Has Happened to Hugenberg?"

The publication said the former German "economic czar" was struck down and beaten by Nazi leaders last September while attempting to discuss over the radio the anti-Semitic laws. "There has been no news of him since," it said.

BERLIN STATEMENT

Berlin, Feb. 25. (Canadian Press from Havas)—Nazi authorities yesterday denied that Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, former Reich Minister of Economy, had disappeared, as reported in The New Statesman of London.

Authorities also denied the former minister had split with Nazi leaders.

Woman Is Given Long Prison Term

Associated Press

Seattle, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Nellie Essick, sixty-year-old widow and former parent-teacher association worker, was given a twenty-year prison sentence yesterday for the knife slaying of her daughter's suitor, Earl Helms, thirty-one, last November 16.

Defence Counsel Charles H. Heighton said he would not appeal. He had argued unsuccessfully for a new trial.

"I am inclined to believe you are somewhat fortunate in receiving the verdict that you did," Superior Judge James B. Kinne said before passing sentence.

She was convicted of manslaughter two weeks and a half ago. She contended she had struck Helms with a carving knife in attempting to defend her daughter, Eunice, from Helms's attentions. Helms was slain on the parking strip in front of her home.

Polish-German Links Growing

Canadian Press via Havas

Berlin, Feb. 25.—Returned to this capital from his week's "hunting trip" in Poland, Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering was widely acclaimed to-day for renewal of cordiality in Polish-German relations.

The bag which the Reich master of the hunt brought back was understood to include significant diplomatic trophy, plus two wild boars which he shot while hunting with Polish officials in Bialewieza Forest.

Gen. Goering's friendly conversations with President Ignacy Mosciki and Foreign Minister Jozef Beck were believed to have included the Warsaw government's alleged "flirting" with the principle of collective security, which would presumably have brought it into an anti-German line-up with France and Britain.

NEW U.S. COAL WAGE DISCUSSION

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 25. — Hard coal operators and union leaders strove today to reconcile their differences and draft a new working agreement for the vast anthracite industry of the United States.

Meeting behind closed doors, the joint committee representing operators and workers, started work yesterday on a contract to replace the five-year one ending March 31.

Neither side would discuss the session, saying only that negotiations had begun and daily afternoon meetings would be held.

Vancouver Moves To Settle Suit

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—The Vancouver City Council yesterday authorized Corporation Counsel D. E. McTaggart to ascertain on what basis a settlement could be made with J. B. Williams, former city solicitor, who is suing the city for unstated damages for alleged wrongful dismissal.

Mr. Williams's counsel yesterday expressed the intention of pressing for a speedy trial unless the city makes immediate settlement.

The former city solicitor and City Clerk Charles Jones were dismissed from office early in 1935. Mr. Jones was later reinstated, then superannuated when physicians declared him unfit to return to duty.

Mr. McTaggart told the council he believed the maximum which Mr. Williams might obtain from the city would be one month's salary plus his costs. He estimated the costs at $150, but stated they might amount to $500 or $600 if he case went to trial.

Queen Sea, mother of Teta, who ruled Upper Egypt in 3400 B.C., used a hair tonic which consisted of dog toes, donkey hoofs, and dates.

Seventeen Tons of Food in Hampers

Hampers delivered totaled 1,592, an increase of 184 over the previous Christmas. The total value of the food contained was [illegible] higher than at Christmas, 1934.

Cash donations amounted to $5,361.74. All of this sum went to the purchase of 138,106 pounds of food. In addition 14,232 pounds of foodstuffs, valued at $1,450, were donated, making a total of 152,338 pounds, with a value of $6,811.74.

Potatoes, tomatoes and tobacco all belong to the same family; of the first we use the roots; of the second, the fruit, and of the third the leaves.

The Country Doctor

A Novelization of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Starring the Dionne Quintuplets, Jean Hersholt, Dorothy Peterson, June Lang, Michael Whalen and Slim Summerville

CHAPTER II

Mike Scanlan did not die. Nor did he lose the sturdy legs that had meant a living, life itself, to him. Dr. Luke's practiced and sensitive fingers served for X-ray, and Mike was soon encased in two mummy-like casts up to the hips. Far into the night worked Dr. Luke, to get Mike comfortably installed in his boarding house.

To soften the blow of missing the morrow's boat and the dreary prospect of long months in bed instead, there was the promise of a small radio. What if Mike's pay for the season was scarcely enough to pay for his board and keep for the winter, let alone to pay Dr. Luke for saving his life and his legs? The radio would be there anyway. Dr. Luke would be the only one who could tell you how it got there. But it's not likely that he would.

So by the following day, Mike Scanlan was as happy as a man with both legs in casts can be. He could hear the steamer whistle echoing across the hills. For the river boat, North Star, waits for no man when she sails from Moosetown on her last trip in autumn to the southland. She dares not wait. Soon, all too soon, the winter descends, and Moosetown is isolated, the waters frozen, the roads well-nigh impassible except for sleighs and dog teams.

The North Star's whistle drew to the boat-landing everybody who could walk at all. Three or four lumbermen on deck, all a little drunk, were working away at barroom harmony that was less accurate than heartfelt. Catcalls, whistles and boos greeted the effort.

* * *

Constable Ogden was there, his jaw doubly swollen by the recent tooth extraction and a fresh quid of "plug." He had a couple of Indians in tow, with claims against one of the lumbermen leaving on the boat. Dr. Luke and Nurse Kennedy, intent on placing last-minute orders for precious medical supplies, were at the purser's window.

"Bring us back some aspirin," reminded Nurse Kennedy, running her finger down a long list.

"How much?" inquired the purser.

"About a bushel."

"And iodine . . ."

"How much?"

"About a gallon . . ."

A lumberman elbowed his way up to Dr. Luke.

"I was looking for you, Doc. Wanted to pay you."

Down into breeches pocket went a grimy hand, emerging with several greasy bills, and a handful of small silver.

"Five sixty, five eighty-five, five ninety-five, six!" he counted as the coins dropped.

"That all you got, son?" inquired Dr. Luke, with a wry smile.

The youth grinned. "Just made it. didn't I, Doc?" he commented.

With a furtive look about him, Dr. Luke pressed the money quickly into the grimy hand. "Keep it," he whispered. "You'll need it 'outside.' Pay me next year." And suddenly the doctor had vanished into the crowd, leaving behind him an embarrassed youngster with a fistful of coins.

* * *

Soon, however, Dr. Luke was back at the purser's window. The last opportunity to make sure of precious medical supplies was too important to overlook a single bet. The whistle was blowing again in final warning as the purser chirped, "Anything else, Doc?"

"I guess that's all," speculated Dr. Luke. "Oh, yes, a pair of baby scales." He grinned in a mock-grumbling manner. "More government stuff—as if I couldn't weigh a baby in my hands! Shucks! Let 'em go this time. I'll get 'em next year. So long, George. Have a nice winter!"

"Got enough detective stories till spring?"

"I guess so. Everybody left me something, detective stories, movie magazines, those confession things. If they ever give out—well, I can always read Pickwick Papers again!"

A chorus of good-natured hoots from the roistering lumbermen on deck drew their attention.

Mary . . . revealed all the fresh loveliness that is part of youth . . . she was obviously in her teens.

"Hey, papa!"

"Come on, stork!"

"Run out o' names yet?"

So the banter ran as a worried little man, anxious, humorless and distressed, came loping down to the gangplank.

"Look who's coming again," noted Nurse Kennedy, meaningly. "It's Asa Wyatt! Looks to me as though you're going to need those baby scales sooner than you expected!"

Asa Wyatt, whose brood of youngsters, regularly augmented, had become a sort of symbol even in a region where babies were part of the annual routine, came hurriedly aboard, calling, "Doc! Hey, Doc!"

Nurse Kennedy turned to Dr. Luke, resignedly. "Well, I guess it's another Wyatt!" she said quietly.

"Impossible!" spluttered the doctor. "Too soon!"

"Not for her!" said Nurse Kennedy firmly.

"Can you come now, Doc, right away?" implored Wyatt.

"Sure, sure, let's go!" reassured the doctor. And nurse, doctor and the distraught Wyatt descended the gangplank, to a chorus of catcalls and good-natured comment from the lumbermen on deck.

Dr. Luke leaned toward Asa with quick reassurance. He whispered, "Don't let anybody think they can tease you about babies, Asa. It's good to have babies, plenty of 'em. Nothing sweeter in life than babies, and don't you forget it!"

* * *

But even as they stood at the gangplank, there was a new diversion. Elbowing through the crowd, his face set and grim, came MacKenzie. Without a word he pushed his way up the gangplank and into the cabin of the North Star. Men fell silent, the rough jokes and songs stopped, as he passed. There were few who in their hearts did not fear MacKenzie.

"Whoever he's after, brother, I'm sorry for him!" whispered one.

"Yeh! I remember there was a fellow last fall . . . Holy Mackerel. it's his daughter!"

The grim-faced MacKenzie was just emerging from the cabin and descending the gangplank, looking neither to right nor left. Behind him, her face averted in shame, her slender wrist locked in MacKenzie's hairy fist, came his daughter, Mary. A suitcase swung in her free hand.

The girl, her eyes glistening with tears, revealed all the fresh loveliness that is a part of youth. She was obviously still in her teens. She hurried with uneven steps to keep pace with her father's furious strides.

Dead silence fell over the crowd on deck and on the dock, adding to the shame that colored her downcast face. The story was as plain as if written out for all to read. She had clearly been trying to leave Moosetown and her father, on the last boat of the season to the "outside."

Dr. Luke, Nurse Kennedy and Asa Wyatt stood still as father and daughter passed. The harshness with which MacKenzie treated his daughter was more than a legend in Moosetown. The eyes of Dr. Luke and the nurse were cold as father and daughter passed them.

"The big gorilla!" whispered the nurse.

"He's a rough, hard man," meditated Dr. Luke, almost to himself, and as though he were thinking of something else.

"He doesn't have to be so tough on his own kid!" returned the nurse indignantly.

The North Star gave a last hoarse whistle, echoing across the river and back from the dark spruce woods that lined the shore. Her ropes, holding her to the river wharf, were slipped from the piling, and slowly the boat edged out into the stream, on her way back to civilization. Already at her prow there was a faint crunching sound as thin sheets of ice, like cardboard, crumpled in her path.

CHILDREN'S AID REPEATS PLEA

All Government Grants Go to Maintenance of Children Committed to Care

"Why is the Children's Aid Society asking for funds?' is a question we are often asked," remarked a member of the campaign committee of the society, which is at present conducted a drive to raise the sum of $5,000 for preventive work.

"Doesn't the government support you?'

"The provincial or municipal payments to the society are solely for maintenance of children who are committed to our care by court order," he explained, "when conditions in the home, or other circumstances, are such as to make permanent removal advisable.

"We consider that every child has the right to a good home, his own if possible. In investigating every complaint our aim is to so improve the conditions in the home that it will not be necessary to remove the children, because we believe that the natural home, even of low standard, may have more to give the particular children in it than any foster home can possibly offer.

"Only after all efforts to improve the conditions have proved unavailing do we consider taking the child into custody.

VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS

"Our preventive work, and the amount of service we can give in this department, is entirely dependent upon the financial support we receive from voluntary contributions.

"There is no charge against the provincial or municipal governments for the great bulk of investigation, either of complaints received or in connection with legal adoptions, nor for a particular service to unmarried mothers, and much else which is included in the work of a Children's Aid Society.

There are often cases in which the cost to the community of permanent guardianship may be saved by giving temporary care, to tide over, without having a child legally committed. As the cost to the community of raising a dependent child is estimated at $4,000, the money saving value of preventive work, quite apart from the social value, need not be stressed."

Cheques should be made payable to the Children's Aid Society, 1234 Pandora Avenue.

Mrs. G. Vanderbilt Again Appeals

Washington, Feb. 25 (Associated Press).—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt appealed today to the supreme court to give her sole custody of her twelve-year-old daughter, Gloria, over whom a colorful legal battle has been waged for months.

She appealed from a decision of the appellate division of the New York supreme court, giving principal custody of the child to her paternal aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Nothing distresses a person going on a diet so much as to face at his first meal the list of all the things that he cannot eat. Usually it appears to contain practically all the things that he would like to eat, and to leave very little else.

Dr. M. Fishbein

But this is not the case. Here, for instance, is a list of foods commonly permitted to people placed on a smooth and soft, or bland, diet.

The foods in this list are very low in their amount of cellulose or indigestible fibre, are easily available, not difficult to prepare, and exclude irritating substances.

Beverages—Milk, buttermilk, fruit juices, weak coffee or tea, decaffeinated or cereal coffee.

Soups—Any kind of meat soup (strained), tomato soup, vegetable soup (strained); cream soups made with cream and pureed vegetables.

Breads—White bread, plain rolls, toast or crackers, zwieback.

Eggs—Coddled, soft-boiled, poached, raw or scrambled.

Fats—Butter, cream, oleomargarine, olive oil.

Cereals — Cornflakes, cream of wheat, farina, oatmeal.

Fruits—All fruit juices, applesauce.

Vegetables—Raw endive, lettuce, romaine, watercress, cooked and sieved asparagus, lima beans, carrots, spinach, peas, squash, sweet and white potatoes.

Meats—Broiled steak, roast beef, lamb, mutton, or chicken (broiled boiled or roasted).

Fish—Any fresh fish; baked, broiled or boiled.

Cheese—Cottage cheese or cream cheese

* * *

Here are sample menus for those who want a bland diet:

Breakfast

Bland fruit juice; cooked cereal (without bran); soft cooked egg; white bread (toast), butter; weak coffee, tea or cocoa; small amount sugar.

Lunch

Cream asparagus soup, strained; cottage cheese or other cheese or entree, starchy food; sieved carrots; custard; white bread toast, butter; milk.

Dinner

Chicken broth; lamb chop; baked potato; pureed peas; tapioca cream; white melba toast, butter; milk.

If the dieting person is still hungry and wants more food after this type of menu, he may have extra meals or eggnog at 10 in the morning, at 3 in the afternoon and at 8 at night.

TODAY'S HEALTH QUESTION

Q.—More than a year ago my wife was operated on for appendicitis. Since then she has had a great deal of pain. Do you believe another operation will be necessary?

A.—In such a case, it is not possible to give intelligent advice without a personal examination. The pain which the woman has suffered since her operation for appendicitis probably is due to adhesions, which frequently follow abdominal operations and sometimes cause pain and distress for many months after the operation is performed. This occurs even when the operation is done by the wisest and most skillful surgeons. It is always uncertain whether a subsequent operation will bring about an improvement in the condition.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1936

Adverse planetary aspects appear active today, according to astrology. It is wise to be cautious in all things, especially in courtship.

Industry again will be retarded by certain labor troubles, for there is a sign that distorts the vision of both employers and employees.

Under this planetary government there may be much deceit and intrigue affecting individuals in all walks of life. Envy and jealousy will inspire bitter political antagonisms.

Despite malefic aspects constructive planning may materialize in projects of international importance. Whatever is constructive should be encouraged. In thought it is wise to build rather than to tear down.

Women today are subject to unfavorable influences that may make them difficult to please whether in the home or in business. There may be suspicion on the part of girls that they are unfairly treated. They are warned against self-pity and hyper-sensitiveness.

Good news may be expected in the evening, when the radio will bring tidings of world significance. Many anxieties may now turn to joy.

Those who read the stars prognosticate perils for the white race, which may be submerged in future years through conflicts with men of darker skin and older civilization. As a new era develops world changes will be amazing.

Warning is given that what has been termed an "American periodical boom cycle" will encourage speculation that later will prove disastrous.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of changes that involve journeys for many. Impractical plans should be ignored.

Children born on this day probably will be studious, but temperamental and difficult to guide. Many subjects of this sign gain fame through intellectual superiority.

Joseph LeConte, geologist, was born on this day, 1823. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Victor Hugo, French novelist, 1802, and William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill), scout, guide and showman, 1846.

Summer Sweetheart

They were in the car; unbelievably, they were whirling down the Post Road again. Zoe slumped between them, limp and unprotesting.

"We'll drop you at home, Johnny," Katharine said. "I'll stop with Zoe at her house. Tell Bertine she's not feeling well."

"I don't need anyone," Zoe protested. She was deadly pale.

"Don't let Bertine telephone her mother," Katharine went on swiftly. "She's quite likely to unless you stop her."

"I'll fix it," Dr. Kaye looked grim.

He helped them out at the Parker driveway. He waved his hand and left them, to walk the few hundred yards of roadway that separated them from the Strykhursts's. A clock in the convent tower boomed the half hour.

"He's just in time for dinner," Katharine said, on a note of hysterical laughter. She was terribly shaken. Zoe, like a doll on strings, like an automatic figure, allowed herself to be led to the house. The maid, Gerda, came to the door leading to the terrace, which was locked.

"Oh, Miss Zoe! I thought you said you weren't to be here for dinner."

"She wasn't, Gerda, but I think she's changed her plans. Will you bring some tea up to her room?"

"I don't want anything," Zoe said lifelessly.

The broad halls were in twilight as the two girls ascended the stairs. Here and there a bar of late sunshine broke through the iron grilles appearing at intervals in the walls. Zoe's room was shuttered and cool. Silver Venetian blinds made a glimmering dusk here. In one swift glance Katharine saw the overnight bag at the foot of the bed. Zoe thrust it aside and flung herself across the taffeta coverlet, sobbing.

"I wish I were dead!"

"No, you don't. What a silly thing to say!" But Katharine felt the hopelessness, the utter futility of any argument.

Zoe sat up, rubbing her eyes with a childish gesture. "But I do! Oh, you don't know—"

* * *

She burst into loud weeping again, face downward on the coverlet.

"I—I was going to marry him," she sobbed. "He said he hadn't seen her for months—"

"That girl in Swampscott?"

Zoe raised a streaked and distorted face. "No, no, of course not! She didn't really matter. She was just—nothing at all. But the girl we saw tonight—" Zoe clenched her hands into fists. "I hate her," she grated. "I'd like to tear her into bits!"

"Do you know who she is?"

Zoe fairly snorted in contempt. "Of course I do. D'you mean to say you don't? What a little white lily you are!"

"Oh, I'm sorry," Zoe said hurriedly. "I didn't mean to be so nasty. But, oh, if you knew what I've been through! I don't care what happens to me now—"

She ground her fists into her eyes.

"She's a singer," she went on after a moment. "Cissy Malotte. Surely you've heard of her—"

Katharine remembered now. The girl who was supposed to have had a gangster lover, the girl Gibbs had known last year.

"Yes, I remember now."

"Well, I knew about her," Zoe said between sobs. "I thought it was—just one of those things. I thought she was an older woman—wicked, fading, all that. But now I've seen her! Why, she's young! She's beautiful in a horrible way. And did you see the way he looked at her? Ahhh—" Zoe's sob rose almost to a shriek.

"Hush, hush! You don't want the maids to hear you," said Katharine, distracted at this exhibition of undisguised suffering.

"I don't care who hears," Zoe cried fiercely. "It's all right for you. You're so calm and cool; you've never known what it is to feel this way—to hate anyone. You've never even been in love."

"Ah, haven't I?" thought Kay bitterly. Aloud she said nothing.

Zoe flung herself about wildly.

"I know what I'll do," she shrilled. "I'll kill myself! That will make him sorry for the way he's treated me."

CHAPTER XVI

Michael Heatheroe went down into the paddock. Michael had on his grey tweeds—the suit he had worn the night Katharine had seen him Mrs. Merser's house. He patted Prince Charlie and led him into the stable where the other horses neighed in recognition. Fury, in her stall, stamped and neighed and pawed the straw under her feet. But Michael disappointed the nervous little horse by giving no sign of noticing. Usually he spent a good deal of time with the animals after dinner. Fury rolled her eyes so that only the whites were visible, if you stood at the stable door. But Michael paid no attention to her—only gave Prince Charlie a lump of sugar, said a word or two to Tips, who was reading a week-old comic section, and was on his way.

Michael without one of his steeds was like a king without his kingdom. The little, shabby, rattling car was an incongruous vehicle for the tall, rangy young man with the western tan on his brow and cheeks. He climbed into it, threw it into gear and began to slide down the incline away from the shabby farmhouse. He could see Tips's father's dark, seamed face, smiling vacantly at the kitchen window. The old man was washing dishes.

This was twilight. Not the Montana twilight Michael knew and loved, with its sudden drop from full day to dusk, its almost dazzling, crystaline coolness, but an eastern twilight, warm and heavy and languid. The day had been extremely hot. Michael drove out of the lane and down the road toward the village.

School Absences Due to Colds Cut Almost One-half

Famous Colds-control Plan Tested in Three Series of Clinics Among 5,118 School Children

FURTHER PROVED IN HOME USE

School absences due to colds have been reduced nearly one-half (40.20 per cent) by following Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. This is shown in records of clinics among 5,118 school children.

Mothers and teachers alike welcome Vicks Plan as a practical guide to fewer and shorter colds. This commonsense, medically sound Plan is based on three simple steps:

1. To Help Build Resistance to Colds Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To Help Prevent Many Colds At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To Help End a Cold Sooner If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

What Vicks Plan can do for others has been indicated not only in clinics, but also in the further proof of everyday home use by thousands. What it can do for you and your family can be proved only by trying it. Directions for following the Plan come in each package of Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks VapoRub.

WOMEN SEEK MANY FAVORS

M.P.'s Bombarded With Letters and Protests on All Subjects

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Temiscouata, has not forgotten to write home. Every day since the session started he has sent 100 letters and yet he has not managed to make any great inroad on the stack of 2,000 that piled up to be answered while he was away on his Christmas holidays.

Many of his letters are "from women asking for some favor," he said. Mr. Pouliot sighed, waved his hand expressively and turned to sign another letter.

Other members of Parliament cheered him with the news that he was not alone in his dilemma. It appears the woman voter is occasionally unreasonable.

Some years ago an elderly woman waylaid Premier Mackenzie King on every possible occasion to protest against the removal of an elevator outside her room when the new wing was added to the Chateau Laurier. In some way she held him responsible for her having to walk down a corridor to board the new lifts.

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, leader of the opposition, was equally embarrassed by another woman who insisted he come to her house to meet some interesting people. All in vain Mr. Bennett protested he already knew too many interesting people. She followed him and waited for him for weeks always with the request that "he dine with us next Thursday."

FRIENDSHIP AN ART IS CLAIM

Mrs. D. M. Duncan Addresses "Y" Business Girls on Relationships

Professing her belief that women can face up to a high type of friendship, Mrs. D. M. Duncan, head mistress of St. Margaret's School, yesterday evening gave some advice on the subject to the group of young women attending the fifth lecture in the charm course sponsored by the Senior Girls' Business Club at the Y.W.C.A.

The fifth in a series of weekly talks, Mrs. Duncan's lecture was on the subject, "The Art of Being a Friend Among Men and Women." Next week Mrs. Hazel Hudson will speak on "Cultural Appreciation."

Mrs. Duncan commenced her talk with a series of warnings, aimed at guarding women, who are emotional, impulsive creatures, from making the mistakes to which they are often prone. Quoting the proverb, "Friendship that flames goes out in a flash," Mrs. Duncan pointed out that the average woman is apt to plunge headlong into friendship and then wonder rather forlornly why it has been a failure.

"Nothing is more antagonistic to friendship than narrow exclusive monopoly," said Mrs. Duncan, referring to three cases of her knowledge, in which the friends had common interests, but became so exclusive that they killed their friendship. Such a relationship she described as a grotesque mockery of friendship.

Durability in friendship has to be prepared for and guarded, but not sentimentalized over, the speaker warned. She also suggested that friends should be treated with as great delicacy as acquaintances. One should guard against a tendency to brutal frankness.

A girl of great personal charm is in danger of falling into the error of dropping friends and then whistling them back, Mrs. Duncan said. The safeguard to this was sincerity and true worth.

If, by some error in judgment, it seems wise to discontinue a friendship, because it is not of sufficient value to continue it, there should be a clean cut, she advised.

Speaking of friendship between men and women, Mrs. Duncan gave it as her opinion that, except in unusual cases, friendship between members of the opposite sexes is not likely to develop. As friendship requires common interests and a great deal of time spent together, and what is more than likely to happen is that a man and woman fall in love. If one does and one does not the friendship ends, and if they do not, and friends imagine that they have fallen in love an awkward situation arises.

Even if there are none of these complications, a man who gives up his time to such a friendship is not spending the time which he might be spending on courting the girl he is going to marry. Similarly a girl loses the opportunity of being with the man she is to marry.

Added to this a woman's vanity makes a friendship between the opposite sexes exceedingly difficult, as the average girl begins to dramatize it early in acquaintance.

Mrs. Duncan pointed to the real value of friendship between brothers and sisters, and the memories which enrich life because shared together in this way.

In conclusion, the speaker acknowledged that in the past at all events men have had a finer and saner conception of friendship than women, but stated that she believed that women, who had made such great strides in many ways during the past two generations would make equal progress in the art of friendship, through honestly facing their failures and measuring up to the high standard. Such a standard demanded "sticking," even in times of adversity, and being willing to forget the unguarded moments and remember the highest.

PIGEON BRINGS ODD MESSAGE

Manitoba Woman Mystified By Note Found on Exhausted Bird

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—Mrs. J. F. McCrady, farmer's wife of Raeburn, Man., brought a read bird mystery to Winnipeg today.

Last November a carrier pigeon, weak and starving, dropped on her shoulder as she worked outside her home. A note on its leg carried the following message: "June 21, 1935. To Lizzie Dunthorn from Aunt Lizzie Tuck. Keep the bird. Letter and money later."

The woman, mystified by the strange message, says she was Lizzie Dunthorn before her marriage, and that she has not heard from her aunt, Lizzie Tuck, for forty-two years.

The aunt in addition lives in England, and how the strange message came to be fastened to the bird's leg provides a puzzle she is unable to fathom.

Mrs. McCrady, according to a statement she made here yesterday, has written the aunt in England to discover whether she can throw any light on the mystery. No members of her family, she claims, have ever been interested in carrier pigeons and the bird is the only one seen in the district.

A brief ceremonial was held, during which Margaret Morgood was presented with the ranger star by Miss Williams. Games and competitions were enjoyed, and after an interval for supper, when a delicious repast was served, camp fire singing followed, the outstanding item being a song written in honor of Miss Williams. Miss Williams presented framed portraits of the Chief Scout and Chief Guide to the Rangers for their headquarters as a parting gift.

DAFFODIL TEA SET FOR APRIL

King's Daughters' Annual Affair at Miss Spencer's April 2

Arrangements for the annual daffodil tea, which the King's Daughters inaugurated many years ago as their chief source of revenue, were made at the monthly district meeting held yesterday in the rest room, with Mrs Wm. Russell, the president, in the chair.

Miss Agnes Spencer is kindly loaning her home on Moss Street for the tea, which is to be held on April 2, and an attractive musical programme will be arranged, together with the usual attractions.

Reports presented at the meeting included that of the rest room, Mrs. James Stewart reporting them open twenty-five days with 1,568 patrons.

The circle reported the following: The making of layettes; Afghan sent to the Solarium; a quilt to the V.O.N. and food, fuel and clothing supplied to those in need; a cash donation to the Columbia Coast Mission; on request from an invalid for a radio, members promised to make an effort to secure one, and donations to the children's ward of the Jubilee Hospital.

A new junior's circle formed under the name, "The Jubilee," in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the King's Daughters.

Weddings

BRABINER—MADDERS

A quiet wedding took place in St. John's Church, Colwood, on Saturday, when Alice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Madders of Glen Lake Road, Luxton, became the bride of William Edward Brabiner, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Brabiner, pioneer residents of Victoria. Rev. A. M. Acheson-Lyle officiated. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a becoming gown of periwinkle blue flat crepe, grey straw hat with accessories, and wore a corsage bouquet of pink rosebuds. The matron of honor, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, wore a gown of royal blue sheer radium lace, with corsage bouquet of carnations and freesia. Mr. J. W. Marshall acted as best man. Miss James presided at the organ.

Following the ceremony, immediate relatives sat down to supper with a three-tier wedding cake centring the table. Daffodils and spring flowers were the table decorations.

After a honeymoon spent on the mainland, Mr. and Mrs. Brabiner will reside in Luxton.

GIBSON—COOPER

At St. Barnabas Church on Saturday evening Rev. N. E. Smith officiated at the quiet wedding of Mary Ann, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Cooper, Walnut Street, and Mr. James Gibson, youngest son of Mr and Mrs. J. Gibson, Blackwood Street. Dr. Watson presided at the organ and played the wedding marches, and as the register was being signed, played "O Promise Me."

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a smart gown of Bagdad blue, made on close-fitting lines, with a cowl neck and full sleeves attached to long, tight cuffs and a silver Juliet cap trimmed with a white gardenia. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and white narcissi. Miss Roberta Cooper, in a pretty frock of pink taffeta and a matching picture hat, attended her sister, and carried a bouquet of assorted spring flowers. The best man was Mr. Nicholas Rayne, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

A small reception attended by relatives only was held after the service at the home of the bride's parents, the bride and groom leaving at midnight for Vancouver, where they will reside.

Social And Club Interests

DON'T EXERCISE

THAT is advice that almost everyone accepts gratefully. Yet for at least 98% of civilized people it is advice that carries with it a curse. Physiology says: "All unused, under-used, or impeded cells and organs tend to be destroyed," also "All cells and organs increase in working power the more they work, up to the point where exhaustion begins." So unless you use (exercise) your muscles they tend to be destroyed. You don't care for your muscles? Don't publish your ignorance like that. Another law says: "All cells and organs are interrelated through the sympathetic nervous system so what affects any one part for good or ill similarly affects all parts." Your soft, flabby muscles must favor soft, flabby vital organs, including your heart.

Vigorously exercised muscles mean vigorous vital organs, including your heart. But if past 45 do not exercise vigorously until you have built a normal alkali reserve in your blood. Your heart may not be able to circulate the viscid (ropy) blood resulting from conventional acid-forming foods. The correct foods are too many to be listed but I shall gladly mail you a list of them free if you write me for them.

If you feed yourself as I feed myself you will want to exercise, thrill and ecstasy will be yours with each effort and movement, because you are obeying a supreme law of being: "Struggle, effort, overcoming is the law of perfection." Yielding, coddling, resting is the way to physical destruction.

If you are too indolent to write me or do anything else, at least use Roman Meal, Bekus-Puddy, and Lishus, one large meal daily, also a large raw vegetable or fruit salad daily for three months. After that I shall not have to argue with you.

A wonderful record of social service, in the shape of gifts of clothing to needy families on the island and the mainland, together with 347 garments given to the Columbia Coast Mission, was revealed in the annual reports of the Margaret Rocke Robertson Chapter I.O.D.E. yesterday afternoon

OFFICERS CHOSEN

The meeting was held at the home of the regent, Mrs. L. A. Genge, who was re-elected by acclamation to that office, others chosen being: First vice-regent, Mrs. Hermann Robertson; second vice-regent, Mrs. Will Luney; secretary, Miss K. Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. J. Gordon Smith; educational secretary, Mrs. W. Brown; Echoes secretary, Mrs. Mackenzie-Grieve, and standard-bearer, Miss Nan Eve.

Miss K. Wilson, the secretary, in her resume of the year's activities, recalled the cabaret at the Empress Hotel; a garden party at the home of Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Driscoll, and donations were made to all Municipal undertakings, including secondary education, Girl Guides, Women's Workroom, child welfare, soldiers' graves, Travelers' Aid, Christmas hampers, with annual subscriptions to the Navy League and League of Nations.

GAVE MANY GARMENTS

Practical assistance to many needy cases was disclosed in the splendid report on welfare work presented by Mrs. Alfred Woodcroft. The chapter had been able to respond to five new appeals, as well as continuing to help the families which had been under its care for two years. Over three hundred garments had been collected, a box of pictures and books was sent to Savona School and clothing sent to a destitute family there. Families at Golden, B.C.; North Pine, McMurdo and Ladysmith were given clothing and other necessities.

In addition, thirty-six articles of men's clothing, chiefly sweaters and suits, and a parcel of fifty magazines were put on board the John Antle for distribution by the Columbia Coast Mission. Altogether 347 garments were sent to the mission, and nine families comprising eleven adults and twenty-seven children on Vancouver Island and in the Peace River district, the Kootenays and in the Rockies.

Reports were read by the conveners and officers, and a satisfactory financial statement was given by Mrs. Smith, the treasurer.

BOOK SHOWER

The chapter has undertaken to furnish a library for the children's ward of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, and towards this end, plans were made for a book shower and bridge party in the Nurses' Home on March 10. Mrs. Will Luney and the Hon. Mrs. F. G. Hood will have charge of the book shower; Mrs. A. Woodcroft will be the bridge convener and tea will be in charge of Mrs. Hermann Robertson, Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Mackenzie-Grieve, Mrs. J. Phethean and Miss A. B. Cooke.

Ross Picture To Be Restored

Likeness of Laura Secord to Disappear From Ontario Legislative Buildings

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 25.—Laura Secord, the only woman immortalized in the Ontario Legislative Buildings' Hall of Fame, must disappear, and the government has decided to attempt restoration of the portrait of Sir George W. Ross, one-time Premier, disclosed yesterday to have been covered by a picture of the famous Canadian heroine.

An effort will be made to restore the picture of Sir George, Premier from 1896 to 1905, Premier Hepburn said, but in any event the Laura Secord picture would no longer hang in the corridor near the entrance to the Legislative Chamber. Whether another Secord picture would be purchased had not been decided.

The Premier's declaration followed the statement of Frank Worrall, Toronto art expert, who conducted the X-ray examination which resulted in the discovery of the Ross picture, that restoration was possible.

Publication yesterday of the X-ray photographs ended the fantastic story which had recurred at intervals for thirty years that somewhere under the painting of the woman, celebrated in history for a twenty-one-mile walk in Ontario to save the British forces in the war of 1812-14, was the picture of Premier Ross.

The portrait of Premier Ross, painted by Mildred Peel, sister of Paul Peel, a well-known painter, was a good work of art. Mr. Worrall said the other picture was "amateurish" and was painted probably a half-year or so after the Ross picture had been done in 1904.

According to the Secord legend, the picture of the heroine of the Battle of Beaver Dam was painted when the artist was informed a historical subject was needed if the portrait was to be sold to the government.

MRS. G. BLACK IS SEVENTY

Woman M.P. For Yukon Received Birthday Orchids Yesterday in House

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Mrs. George Black, member of the House of Commons from the Yukon, celebrated her seventieth birthday yesterday, but continued her work at her seat in the House as if such an event was a daily occurrence.

Instead of the usual bowl of roses—one for each year—which fellow parliamentarians place on the desk of members on their birthdays, Mrs Black wore a corsage of three large pinky-purple orchids.

"I don't think I could have retained my composure with a large bowl of flowers in front of me," she admitted. "So when the Conservative whip told me about the gift I asked that it should be as inconspicuous as possible."

Mrs. Black said that as far as she can remember this has been her happiest birthday—though it shares honors with her eighteenth, celebrated at St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind., when "my father could not give me a coming-out party so he sent me enough of everything for every girl in the school."

Flowers in huge boxes arrived in her office all day long, and at noon she was guest of honor at a lunch given by the Ottawa Women's Press Club.

When asked what she would really like for a birthday gift if she could have her choice, Mrs. Black replied without hesitation: "I'd ask for help for those older people who need it in the Yukon and I would ask for roads there."

She explained she did not mean retirement pensions for persons over sixty-five. "You cannot get me interested in old age pensions for people at sixty, for where would I be? I would have to sit and knit. No, I believe in looking after those who cannot look after themselves. Some men ought to be retired at forty."

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

PRAISE GOOD BEHAVIOR, IGNORE BAD, IF YOU WOULD TRAIN YOUR CHILD

Children are anxious to repeat the kind of conduct which wins them sincere and sweet praise. To tell Tommy—whenever possible—that he makes you proud because he never interrupts when you have company, is to check any thoughtless bids for attention. To humiliate him when he does interrupt, is to make him mean and ready to misbehave again.

Mothers tend to ignore good conduct, as if it were something to be expected, and then give unusual attention to misbehavior. Let Molly cry one night, though she has been used to going to bed without a whimper, and she wins attention—though it may be a scolding, argument and reasoning — attentions which keep the mother in the room and on the job a little longer!

The effect of attention — even though it be angry and punitive—is always to impress the attention-getting conduct on the child. The bed-wetting child isn't influenced by the mother's blame and punishment—but far more often by the mother's praise of his efforts. The child is then filled with a desire to live up to the mother's appreciation, and her faith that he can alter his bad habit. My leaflet, "How to Manage the Child Wisely," will help mothers who are meeting these problems of behavior. Any mother may have a copy by sending a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope with her request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

IGNORE MISBEHAVIOR

Tantrums win the child more parental attention than the child could earn by being undramatically good. Yet it is good behavior we want repeated and not the tantrums.

Mothers who understand the value of judicious praise will be eager to find opportunities to use it. Because approval is powerful it can't be overdone, or used falsely. But there are so many natural situations, so much admirable conduct that deserves praise that mothers should be on the alert to take advantage of them. Then give to misbehavior the neglect it deserves.

Opposes Economic Council Scheme

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—A bill to abolish the Economic Council was given first reading in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon on a motion of J. F. Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata, Quebec.

Mr. Pouliot said the bill was designed to "put the axe of parliamentary control to a dead branch of the dried tree of so-called social legislation."

Provision for the setting-up of an Economic Council was made in a bill passed at the last session, during the Bennett administration. The council has not yet been set up.

Biscuits for Breakfast... what an idea!

Well—it's a fact that "Ritz", the new, dainty, little toasted wafers by Christie's, taste so good that people are enjoying them even for breakfast—as well as for luncheons, dinners, suppers and entertaining.

It's something of a record in good taste when a biscuit will tempt appetites at the breakfast table!

Nut-like flavor, crispness, tasty and toasted tenderness combine to make "RITZ" just about irresistible. It's the flavor you've always been hoping to find some day . . . the flavor that actually improves the taste of soups, salads, cheese . . . of whatever food and drink you serve.

Today, ask your grocer for two or three boxes of "RITZ". One won't be enough. Give the whole family a treat by serving "RITZ", the most popular taste sensation Christie's Bakers ever toasted.

SHOULD TRAIN MINDS TO WORK

Lady Tweedsmuir Says Education Must Be Elastic to Meet Needs

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 25.—Lady Tweedsmuir spoke last night at the opening ceremonies of national education week and admitted that as a child she was poor at arithmetic, a "difficult and distressful science."

"In the modern world, where conditions are changing with such lightning rapidity," she said, "it is vital that we all set our minds to devising a system of education at once elastic enough to meet our needs and strong enough to stand the strain of the ever-changing conditions of the 1930's."

After outlining her idea of education, which included the three R's and a G standing for geography, Lady Tweedsmuir mentioned mechanical advantages accorded the modern child over those of his predecessors, but added:

"To stare stupidly at the movies and listen unintelligently to the radio is not going to help people to have minds that work for themselves. One of the curses of modern life is a tendency to smatter and never go deeply into anything. The mind may become boneless and flabby because it has never used its mental muscles and its sinews."

Hutton Baby Is Dane, Says Count

Associated Press

London, Feb. 25.—Count Haugwitz-Reventlow said today his wife the former Barbara Hutton, and their son, born yesterday, were both "going on very well indeed," and that the child is to be regarded as a citizen of Denmark.

He denied newspaper claims that the tiny count, heir presumptive to a Danish title and to the Woolworth millions, would be British.

"He is Danish all right," said the count, "I will take the necessary steps to insure that, but I have not yet had time to find out what they are."

Continued cold weather with its resultant hardships among needy families today caused the city relief department to continue its appeals to more fortunate citizens to assist in relieving the distress through fuel and clothing donations.

Funds contributed to purchase requisites have been greatly depleted and many people are still in need of assistance.

Donations of clothing, shoes, furniture and cash to effect necessary repairs to the homes of some relief cases were badly needed, E. G. Snowden, relief officer, stated today.

New Players Delight Crowd

Dramatic Group of Spencer's Greeted on First Public Performance

With a particularly good-looking group of young players, Spencer's Dramatic Club made its public debut at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening before a crowd that filled the auditorium.

Two numbers comprised the programme. One was the curtain-raiser "Old Moore's Almanac," a short society crook drama. The main presentation was the three-act "Tommy's Wife's," a farce. Heaton's orchestra played throughout the evening.

"Tommy's Wife" has to do with a promising young portrait painter and the amatory developments that take place in his studio. These developments are on the part of himself, his sister, his sitters and visitors. The play is full of amusing situations, which the members of the cast handled to the delight of the audience.

Especially liked was the work of Bill Hamilton who played Pierre Le Bouton, a French fencing-master, endowing the part plentifully with Gallic excitability and exaggerations. He really made a very amusing stage Frenchman. Lloyd Cann played the leading role of Tommy with confidence and ability. Roy Thomson was Dick Grannis, the ardent lover, after Tommy's sister, Rose. The girls in the cast were all strikingly good-looking and happy in their parts—Lilian Songhurst as Rose, the sister; Eae Conway as Patty Campbell, a student at Dramatic School; Hilda McGillivray as Mrs. de Yorburgh-Smith, a wealthy society woman; Norah Cullen as Sylvia De Yorburgh-Smith; Phoebe Newnham as Edith Bronson, friend of Rose; Babs Ward as Yvonne, Edith's very snappy maid.

The stage setting for "Tommy's Wife" met with appreciative comments from the audience, the curtain-hung studio walls carrying sketches and completed pictures. Then there was interesting furniture and knick-knacks.

"Old Moore's Almanac" presented the rehearsal scene of the principals in an amateur dramatic production. This was highly amusing as the members of the cast read out the stage directions and proceeded to carry them out with free burlesquerie, such as "falls into lover's arms," "looks under table," Bernadette Colbert in a hula-hula skirt, was the Lady Dullas Ditchwater; Lloyd Cann, running around the stage in flannelette pyamas, was Sir John Ditchwater; the attractive Phoebe Newman was Daisy Dimple; Clever Wilson was Algernon Ditchwater, and Phyllis Roberts in very short kilts was Evelyn Tent.

Credit for the efficient management of the productions and their promptness, is to be shared by Mrs. M. Mitchell, president of the Dramatic Club; Sam Saunders, chairman of the club; Hilda McGillivray, secretary-treasurer; Jim O'Connor, stage and properties manager; Harold Ensor, lighting director, and Veronica Francis, script director.

VOICE PRAISE FOR JAPANESE

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Neave of Kyuquot Tell Experiences on Extended Visit

How the city of Tokio handles the problem of snow was told in an interview at the Strathcona Hotel yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Neave, of Kyuquot, who reached Vancouver from an extended trip through Japan a week ago, and arrived in Victoria on Sunday.

There was a considerable fall of snow during their stay in the Japanese capital, so serious that the lighting service was temporarily interfered with. Immediately an army of 20,000 men was sent out by the city authorities, and made short work of clearing roadways and sidewalks.

Mr. and Mrs Neave have nothing but praise for Japan and the Japanese, as well as for the Hikawa Maru, N.Y.K., on which they made the passage in both directions.

"We met the highest and lowest class Japanese during our visit, and we never met a more courteous people anywhere in the world," said Mr. Neeve. "They are a fine people to live among."

When they were getting on trains, busses and street cars, he said, the queues waiting at the doors stood aside to let them pass, and bowed. Everywhere they had met with similar courteous treatment.

"But when they live among Europeans as they do in British Columbia they always seem to deteriorate," said Mrs. Neave. "When they throw off the kimono and take to European clothes they change completely."

COMFORTABLE TRAVEL

Mr. and Mrs. Neave traveled extensively during their nine weeks in Nippon. They found the trains and hotels excellent. The trains, electrically powered, were comfortable and swift, and the hotels were clean, comfortable and exceedingly cheap.

The low cost of everything was one of the things which struck them most. Bicycles of good quality were priced at $5, and every child seemed to have one.

They found very little talk of possible trouble between Japan and Russia, and the better class Japanese ridiculed talk of a possible war with the United States, pointing to the great distance between the two countries.

They were impressed with the military strength of the empire, and saw it demonstrated a great display in the course of which they counted 112 planes flying in formation together.

ATTRACT TOURISTS

Mr. Neave spoke of the efforts being made by Japan to attract tourist business. The sum of 7,000,000 yen was being spent in the Nikko district which they visited for the renovation of the shrines for which the region is famous.

He mentioned the great amount of building going on, especially in Yokohama. He had found great changes in the single year since his last visit.

They had been intrigued during their stay by the tiny Datsun cars, and had considered hiring one for driving around Tokio. But they found that a very stiff driving test was necessary before a license could be obtained. Because of this test there were practically no traffic accidents in Japan.

Before they left the Hikawa Maru the captain presented them with a superb cake, packed in a wooden box specially made by the ship's carpenter. The cake is so beautifully decorated that they have not yet had the courage to cut it.

Mr. and Mrs. Neave propose to stay here for a few weeks before returning to their home at Kyuquot. Their son-in-law is keeper of the Race Rocks lihkthouse, and they were today considering a visit to him and their daughter.

Six Germans Held In Czechoslovakia

Canadian Press from Havas

Praha, Feb. 25.—Six men dressed as German aviators were arrested today at Cinvald, Bohemia, when they tried to pass the Czechoslovak frontier in two automobiles. Police took the officers to Tepluz, where they will be held for investigation.

It was the third such incident on the Czechoslovak-German border in three weeks.

WE DRIVERS

A Series of Brief Discussions on Driving, Dedicated to the Safety, Comfort and Pleasure of the Motoring Public. Prepared by General Motors

No. 4—OUR BRAKES

We have all noticed that whenever a train makes a long enough stop in a station, there is somebody on the job, dodging in and out under the cars making sure that everything is in good shape for the train to continue its trip. One of the things checked at every inspection point is the brakes. For nobody knows better than railroads how important it is to be able to stop when you have to stop.

Now, if we think of it in a certain light, we people who own automobiles are all running little transportation systems of our own . . . just like the railroads and airlines and bus companies. Home is the main terminal and there are lots of stops along the line . . . like the office, the grocery store, the scheduled stops—like the office, the grocery store, the school, the theatre, and our friends' houses.

Just like the railroads, one of the main things we need to look out for is our brakes. Of course, everybody knows this and yet somehow or other we're apt to be a little careless about it. Not that brakes don't give us plenty of notice when they're going to need adjustment. As time goes on we find that we can push the pedal lower and lower, till after a while we can shove it down almost to the floorboards before the brakes take hold. Even then we sometimes wait quite a while before we have them adjusted. It just seems to be human nature to put off things like that. They tell us the result is that one-third of all cars on streets and highways at any given time have something wrong with their brakes.

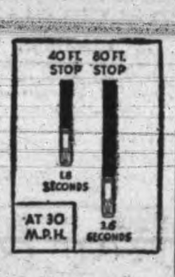
The trouble is that when we let our brakes go like that, all of a sudden we may have to make an emergency stop, and we may find it rather embarrassing.

Engineers say that if we realized what goes on in brakes we would see why we ought to keep them checked up. As they explain, it is a story of momentum and friction, the same old forces we've talk about before.

They say that when we get going we build up a certain energy in the form of momentum. Now when we want to stop, we can't just destroy that energy, because, scientists tell us, Nature never lets any of its energy be destroyed. We can only convert it into some other form of energy. What brakes really do is to convert speed-energy into heat-energy. When we push down on the brake pedal we press the brake lining against the brake drums and this creates friction that changes the energy to heat. When we have changed all the speed energy to heat, then we come to a stop.

Now modern brakes are very powerful. In fact, a 100-horsepower car will have about 500-horsepower brakes. They can stop up pretty quickly even from high speeds. But when they do, they simply change those speeds into a great deal of heat, in a very short time. The fact is we sometimes build up temperatures in our brakes as high as 1,400 degrees!

It is easy to see that heat like that can cause a lot of trouble. Some of us may think it's fun to rush up to sudden stops, but we might as well realize that we have to pay for that kind of fun in excessive brake wear. It simply doesn't pay to build up brake heat a lot faster than it can be thrown off. And we certainly get hardly anything back in time saved. For instance, if we're going thirty miles an hour, our brakes can stop us in forty feet if they are all right; but it takes them less than two seconds longer to stop us in twice that distance. How much better it is, under any normal circumstances, to begin to apply the brakes a few seconds earlier and, with gradually increasing pressure, bring our car to an easy stop. As a matter of fact, smooth, gradual stopping wherever the circumstances permit, is generally taken as a sign of a good driver.



Now if we want to keep our brakes safe and sound, it's important to remember what these fast stops do to them. But it's just as important to remember that all stops generate some heat in our brakes. That's what gradually wears down the linings, and sooner or later makes a brake-adjustment necessary. And that's why we must watch them and see that adjustments are made when they are needed.

So maybe it would be a good idea to keep on thinking of our cars as private transportation systems. If we keep them in good running condition, they well serve us with safety and satisfaction.

Stamp News

By I. S. Klein

First-day cover fans still have plenty of time to send prepared covers to Washington for the new bi-colored sixteen-cent airmail special delivery stamp, to be issued February 10. This is the regular blue sixteen-cent airmail special delivery stamp now in use, except that is has been given a red border, to make it more easily recognizable.

To get first-day covers, address not more than ten envelopes to yourself and send these, with U.S. postal money order of sixteen cents for each cover, to the Postmaster, Washington, D.C., and a request that he mail these with the new stamps on the first day of issue.

Washington will be the only first-day city.

* * *

Last year was probably the greatest in postage history. A British dealer records 2,168 new issues throughout the world, a great many of them commemorative. The Silver Jubilee of King George's reign accounted for nearly 10 per cent. Total postage stamps listed approximate 60,000.

Get ready for a surprise announcement of extension of the transpacific line beyond the Philippines. You may have very little time to prepare covers.

Another set of first-flight covers to anticipate is that on the inaugural of a North Atlantic air service, preparations for which are being made even now. Test flights are expected this summer.

ST. PAUL'S A.Y.P.A.

On Wednesday evening the members of St. Paul's A.Y.P.A. had as their guests in the Parish Hall the members of St. Mark's and St. Matthias. The evening commenced with community singing after which "indoor Olympics" were held, those present being divided into four groups. The keen competition between groups added zest to a very enjoyable evening. About forty were present and the arrangements were in the capable hands of the president, Ray Hadfield and Tom Tams. At the close of the evening refreshments were served by the members of St. Paul's.

Anniversary of Chinese A.Y.P.A.

Over 120 friends and members from the Victoria and District A.Y.P.A. branches were guests of the Chinese A.Y.P.A. at its first anniversary party on Friday evening in the Good Hope Mission Hall, Cormorant Street.

The programme commenced with a short meeting presided by Miss Sue Lee who welcomed the guests and presented Rev. A. Gardiner, the speaker for the evening. Mr. Gardiner congratulated the Chinese A.Y.P.A. and gave a very interesting talk, remarking that the letters A.Y.P.A. may stand for Jesus Christ "Always Your Personal Adviser." The meeting was closed with benediction by Rev. C. Lee.

Various games, conducted by the vice-president, Maurice Chan, were enjoyed with much excitement after which refreshments were served. Rev. T. R. Lancaster tendered a vote of thanks to the branch on behalf of the guests and an hour of dancing brought the enjoyable evening to a close.

The original formula for Worcestershire sauce was evolved by a physician to disguise asafoetida contained in a medicine.

VIEWS GIVEN ON VOTE PLAN

Weir Terms Plebiscite for Health Insurance "Ludicrous Suggestion"

Proposal of Gordon S. Wismer, M.P.P. for Vancouver Centre, that a provincial plesbiscite be held before any action is taken in B.C. on health insurance met with little favor in official circles.

Premier Pattullo indicated here that the matter had not been seriously considered by the government.

Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, termed it a "ludicrous suggestion" and a "good stalling device."

Opponents of health insurance, said the minister, are counting on a sufficient split in the Liberal caucus to delay the bill.

He added: "If the bill can be hung up at the session about to open, then these opponents believe the party will forget the plan, as they apparently assume that there would be little likelihood of introducing the bill later, just before a provincial election. Of course, some of the Liberal members may fall for these stalling tactics—but, if they do, the electors will probably attend to them if and when they come up for re-election."

"The Liberal Party was given its mandate in 1933 to pass health insurance—an important plank in the Liberal platform. The party is committed. What is the Legislature for anyway? If the party adopts such side-stepping, it may find itself in an awkward position. The plebiscite suggestion is rather tardy in appearing. It is nothing but a plan for delay."

Science May Bring Safe Night Driving

New Polarizing Filters Demonstrated at University Extension Lecture By Professor G. M. Shrum Could Block Other Car's Light From Driver's Eyes

Completely safe driving at night may be the next gift of science to the automobile owner, it was suggested by Prof. G. M. Svrum at last night's University Extension Society lecture.

He showed to the audience two small pieces of glass no bigger than eyeglasses. These had been received by the University of British Columbia only three days ago. They were a new type of polarizing filter

The polarizing filter canalizes the rays of light so that their vibrations are in a single plane. If two filters are set across a beam of light, and turned so that their planes ar at right angles, all light waves are blocked.

Professor Shrum suggested that one filter could be applied to all cars' headlights, and another to their windshields. By turning the windshield filter, the driver could eliminate the other car's light, while being able to see his own on the roadway.

At present the pair of small filters were priced at $10, but soon he believed the glass would be commercially producable in large sheets.

The speaker termed claims that a new carburetor could give 200 miles to the gallon of gas scientifically impossible. He also demonstrated with a radiation spectrum that "death rays," mentioned as a weapon of war, were an impossibility.

MOVE AGAINST TREE DISEASE

Taking advance precautions to prevent spread of a mild epidemic of San Jose scale, a fruit tree disease, in the Cawston-Keremeos area, the provincial government passed an order today under which treatment of the trees can be enforced.

It provides penalties of from $50 to $100 if owners do not comply with demands of the tree inspector to spray or otherwise treat the trees. In case of continued refusal he may have the trees treated or have them cut down.

Referee Troubles Loom As B.C. Basketball Finals Approach

THE SPORTS MIRROR

IN ADVANCING his claims to heavyweight recognition, John Henry Lewis predicts that the conqueror of Joe Lewis will come out of the light heavyweight ranks, as did Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, Max Schmeling, Jim Braddock, and many another warrior who failed to scale the heights. Offhand, you might mention Tom Gibbons.

* * *

With Lewis on his current eastern trip are his handler, Gus Greenlee, of Pittsburgh, and Bobby Evans, the old west coast lightweight, manager, and promoter. Lewis, a young negro of Phoenix, won the 175-pound championship from Bob Olin, the former New York bond salesman, in St. Louis last fall.

Boxing's one big trouble today is the failure of promoters to recognize any division but the heavyweight. Greenlee and Evans would like to send Louis against Jim Braddock. They are right when they say that the current search for a white hope will be a long one, as long as the promoters and managers seek size.

* * *

Luther McCarty was the only real fighter who came out of all the white hope tournaments inspired by Jack Johnson's ascendancy to the heavyweight throne. Jess Willard was just a fortunate big fellow carefully guided to the heights along an easy course and who was lucky to catch a thirty-seven-year-old Johnson with physical, financial and legal problems.

* * *

Still we don't suspect that any of the old line managers readily would settle for a Willard today, although practically all will agree that the phlegmatic Pottawatomie Pounder who stood over Johnson in Havana wouldn't linger too long against Louis.

Since he won the light heavy-weight leadership, Lewis has participated in eight non-title fights and scored five knockouts. Promoters have made good and legitimate offers to Primo Carnera, Ford Smith, Art Lasky, Natie Brown, Al Ettore and Eddie Simms.

All have turned their backs to Lewis. Why these fighters, the great majority of them needing matches and money, some ready to go on relief, refuse to meet a kid who will be twenty-two years old on May 6, is rather hard to understand.

* * *

Braddock and Lewis have split decisions. Boxing men will tell you that it is the best fight obtainable.

As Lewis says, "Louis is supposed to be too good for everybody. Then, why not allow Braddock a tune-up. That would get Braddock in shape and give him an opportunity to pick up some loose change. I'd be glad to accommodate Braddock and be the gent in the other corner. After all, there is no reason why Louis should have all the easy money in boxing.

"I've signed to defend the light-heavyweight championship against Jock McAvoy, of England, at Madison Square Garden on May 8. McAvoy decisively defeated Al McCoy, of Boston, and knocked out Babe Risko, the middleweight champion.

"I would gladly agree to enter any heavyweight elimination tournament designed to develop an opponent for either Braddock or Louis.

* * *

"I believe that my record excels those of all the current fighters, including Louis, who flattened a flock of frightened set-ups.

"The press, the public, and promoters, want to know just how good Louis is. Okeh. Stick Louis in there with Maxie Rosenbloom and we'll see if he is the real killer they say he is."

Lewis twice beat Rosenbloom in 1933.

"I will knock out McAvoy in five rounds," continues Lewis. "The way I am going now I believe I can stop ten Braddocks. And I believe that I can whip the great Joe Louis."

Talking to the young man, you get the idea that Lewis might stir up plenty of trouble for Louis.

Why shouldn't he be given the chance? After all, as the light heavyweight ruler he has more right to the opportunity than Charley Retzlaff. And it would be a real novelty to see two negro youths fighting for the world heavyweight championship.

Trail Advances To Hockey Final

Trail, Feb. 25.—Nelson Maple Leafs made a gallant attempt to stave off elimination in the West Kootenay Allan Cup playoffs yesterday evening when they beat Trail Smoke Eaters 3 to 2. Trail, however, won the two-game series 5 to 3 as they had already beaten Nelson 3 to 0 in a game last Saturday night.

Trail now meets Kimberley in a five-game series for the East and West Kootenay championship, opening February 29.

EXPECT LOCAL MAN TO SHARE IN PLAY-OFFS

Province Facing Crucial Matches Without Any Senior A Ticket Holders

Vancouver Action Complicates Issue

The referee issue, major bone of contention in last year's basketball play-offs, was raised again today with the provincial senior A men's final series scheduled to start little more than two weeks hence.

Gordon Wooldridge, president of the island referees' board and vice-president of the British Columbia Basketball Association, today expressed the opinion that a Victoria man would be used as one of the referees in the play-offs

At present, Wooldridge reported, no active referees in the province holds a senior A ticket. Victoria's aspirants failed in a recent floor test to prove to E. L. "Buck" Yeo that they merited the high rating. It was not known locally whether or not Vancouver boys had taken their tests for that grading.

NOT ELIMINATED

Contradictory to his original understanding of the rulings, Mr. Wooldridge stated Dr. G. Montgomery, president of the B.C. Board of Approved Referees, had informed him that the failure of local candidates to pass their floor tests did not necessarily prevent them from handling provincial play-offs.

Mr. Wooldridge explained the objective of the central examining committee head by "Buck" Yeo. There were three referees' boards in the province of different standards and the central body had been established to bring uniformity to the grading of referees.

"It looks as if a man from Victoria will be one of the boys in the B.C. play-offs," he stated. "The four who recently took their floor tests all failed, with Wally Stipe and Bob Macmurchie scoring highest. Fred Harding's standing is at present under question, owing to action by Nanaimo, and Tommy Macedo did not make a very impressive total in Yeo's floor test.

"If they adhere to the marks, it would appear that Macmurchie or Stipe would be favored, but they have had little experience and that feature might persuade the officials to use a man who had handled more games," Mr. Wooldridge said.

METHOD OF APPOINTMENT

He explained the British Columbia Basketball Association, on the advice of the Board of Approved Referees, appointed the referees, but that body usually followed a policy of asking the teams competing in the play-offs which referees they desired. The appointments would not be made, he thought, until immediately before the series started.

Standing of Vancouver referees recently suspended for striking over conditions which did not meet their approval in Vancouver, further complicated the issue. It was understood here their suspension by the Vancouver intercity league made their suspension general. Whether or not they would be reinstated for the play-offs was a question which found no answer in the confines of Victoria's basketballdom.

Chick Hafey Will Try a Comeback

Walnut Creek, Calif., Feb. 25.—Chick Hafey, once a batting king of baseball, is ready to try a comeback in a manner unbelievably strange—with a minor league club.

Instead of immediately rejoining the Cincinnati club, which owns his contract, Hafey said today he wants to come out of voluntary retirement as a Pacific Coast League player, preferably with San Francisco Seals.

The rangy, bespectacled outfielder, who starred in the National League for ten years and led the hitters in 1931, has virtually recovered from illness which forced him to leave Cincinnati suddenly last May. The influenza condition still persists slightly, but barring a serious recurrence Hafey thinks he is capable of several more years of major league campaigning.

South Australia Cricket Champs

Adelaide, Australia, Feb. 25.—South Australia won the Sheffield Shield, premier Australian cricket competition, today, by defeating Victoria by an innings and 190 runs in the final match of the tournament.

Against South Australia's big score of 565 for six wickets, declared, the Victorians were able to make only 201 and 174.

The victory gave South Australia the shield for the fifth time since the inception of the competition, an interstate affair in which New South Wales and Queensland also participate.

B.C. SELECTS SHUTTLE TEAM

Six Players Will Represent Province at Dominion Badminton Tourney

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Six British Columbia badminton stars were named yesterday to represent this province at the Dominion championships to be held in Winnipeg, March 4.

The six chosen are: Dick Birch, Jack Underhill, Mrs. Anna Kier Patrick and Vess O'Shea, all of Vancouver; Eric Leney, Duncan, and Margaret Taylor, Kelowna.

Johnny Samis, sensational junior star, was offered a place on the team, but turned it down, as he felt he could not spare the time from school.

All players will take part in the singles. Underhill and Leney will team up for the men's doubles, and Mrs. Patrick and Vess O'Shea in the women's doubles. Dick Birch will pair with Mrs. Patrick, Jack Underhill with Margaret Taylor, and Eric Leney with Vess O'Shea in the mixed.

They will leave here on February 27 for Winnipeg, giving them three days in the Manitoba city to get prepared for the games.

GOLDEN MILLER RACE CHOICE

Dorothy Paget's Gelding Becomes Hot Favorite For Grand National

London, Feb. 25.—Miss Dorothy Paget's nine-year-old bay gelding, Golden Miller is gradually becoming the hot favorite for the 1936 renewal of the four-and-one-half-mile Grand National steeplechase at Aintree on March 27.

The Miller, winner in 1934 but disappointment in 1935, was quoted today at 11 to 2, slightly lower than last week's price of 6 to 1. Next in the betting comes Major Noel Furlong's last year's winner, Reynoldstown, at 19 to 2. Others at the low end of the odds list include: Belted Hero 100 to 6, Delaneige 18 to 1, Provacative 28 to 1, and Avenger 28 to 1.

Yesterday's callover for the Lincolnshire Handicap at Lincoln on March 25, showed Law Court and Priok Joint favorites at 100 to 8. Screamer at 100 to 6 and Ooer at 25 to 1 were also favored in the books for the one-mile event which opens the English flat racing season.

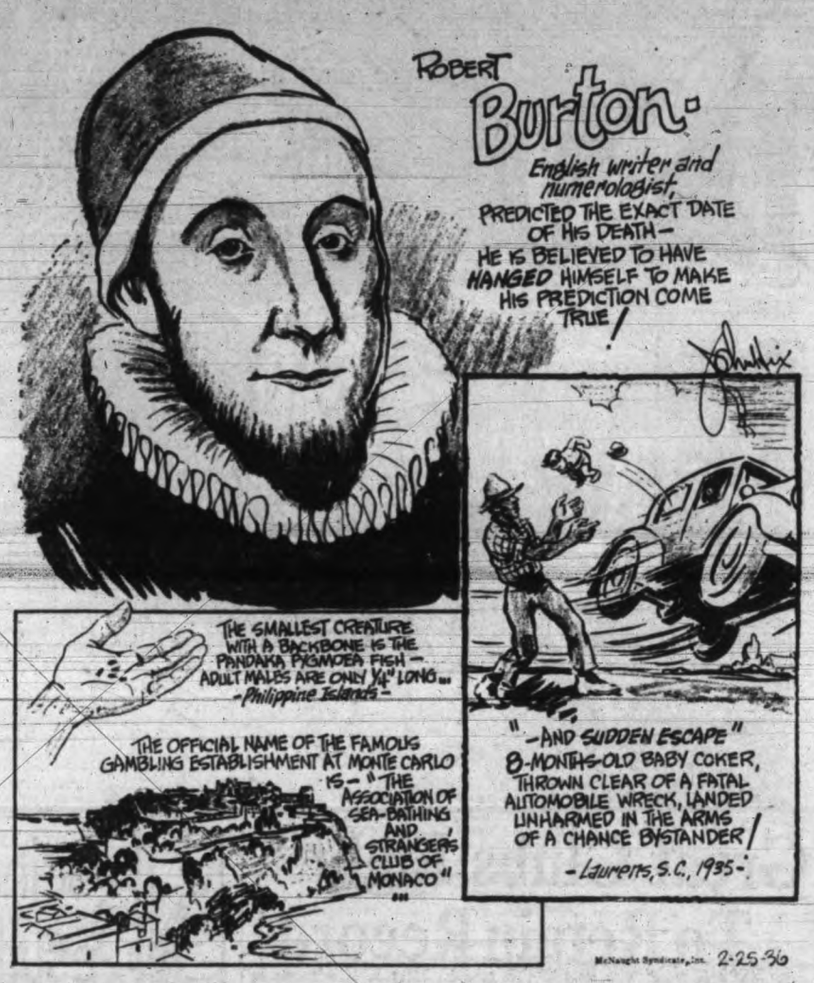
Canadian Hockey Team Wins Easily

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 25.—The Canadian Olympic hockey team, on an exhibition tour through Europe, yesterday evening defeated a Czechoslovakian team, 9 to 1.

Malacek opened the scoring for the home team in the first period, but the Canadians replied with four goals and added four more in the second session and one in the final.

Herman Murray, Montreal, and Alex Sinclair, Port Arthur, tallied twice for the Olympians. Ken Farmer, Dave Neville and Ralph St. Germain, Montreal, each scored once, and the remaining counters were supplied by Gus Saxberg and Arnold Deacon, Port Arthur.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



The strange and undescriptive name by which the famous gambling resort of Monte Carlo is officially known was not given to it by mistake or inadvertence—it was a deliberate attempt on the part of the founder to cloak his institution in an inoffensive name. At first it was called simply "Bathing Society of the Sea of Monaco," but later the owner expanded his name to make it even more strange. It was called "The Association of Sea-Bathing and Strangers' Club of Monaco."

Behind this strange name and other strange rules and regulations of the gambling resort lies the attempt to correct mistakes that ruined Francois Blanc's gambling place in Bavaria. Blanc, who founded Monte Carlo's "sea-bathing and stranger's" resort, began his gambling institutions in and near Paris. Police there would not let him alone, so he moved to Bavaria, where he established a successful place in 1843.

He made his mistake here, however, of letting local citizens play. Several family fortunes in the immediate vicinity were ruined by losses in Blanc's place, and public feeling ran so high that he was forced to re-establish himself elsewhere. When he finally settled at Monaco he made it a point to keep the people contented with his enterprise. He arranged for lightened tax burdens, gave the town beautiful churches, and, most important of all, he refused to let any residents of Monaco gamble at his casino. As a further cloak of innocence, he adopted the strange name the gambling resort bears.

BAERS TURN DOWN OFFERS

Neither Max Nor Buddy Will Accept Bout With Carnera-Gastanaga Winner

New York, Feb. 25.—Promoter James J. Johnston, Madison Square Garden, yesterday wired Max and Buddy Baer offers to meet the winner of the Primo Carnera-Isidor Gastanaga heavyweight match, scheduled for March 6 in the Garden.

Max Baer was quoted last week as planning a comeback.

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 25.—Ancil Hoffman, manager of Max and Buddy Baer, said yesterday his reply will be "No" to the mesages of James J. Johnson, Madison Square Garden promoter, offering to match either of the Baers against the winner of the Carnera-Castanaga heavyweight fight next month.

"Max at present is in no condition for a fight but he is continuing his gymnasium work," said Hoffman. "As for Buddy, he is only twenty years old and I am going to nurse him along with four-round fights for some time to come."

Hank Leiber May Become a Coach

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 25.—An implied threat to quit, unless his salary demands are met, yesterday marked developments in the case of Hank Leiber, holdout of New York Giants and one of the greatest young outfielders to hit the big leagues in many years.

Leiber, according to an announcement at Tucson, Ariz., has accepted an offer to become baseball coach at the University of Arizona. He left his home at Phoenix yesterday for Tucson, presumably to begin work.

According to Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, Leiber's demands are so far beyond the club's offer that it is "useless to negotiate further."

THREE MAJOR ICE BATTLES

Toronto and Maroons Will Face Rangers and Black Hawks To-night

Boston Bruins, not far from elimination, face a crisis in the National Hockey League wars tonight. They play hosts to New York Americans, just as desperate as the Bruins and almost as close to elimination.

Playing before a home crowd, the Bruins will be without Dit Clapper and Max Kaminsky, out with injuries. Charlie Sands and Jerry Shannon have been brought up from Boston Cubs of the Canadian-American League.

A Boston win would renew hope of overtaking either Chicago Black Hawks or New York Rangers for a playoff berth in the American section. Should Americans win, the Bruins would be not far from "out," and Americans would have a strong chance of placing third in the Canadian section, ahead of Montreal Canadiens.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Maroons, deadlocked for the Canadian division lead, play tonight. The Leafs face New York Rangers, unbeaten in their last eight starts, and Maroons take on the dangerous Chicago Black Hawks.

Whalen's Rink In Win at Vancouver

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Bill Whalen, Vancouver, skipped his rink of youngsters to a 12 to 10 victory over Donald Macdonald, Trail, yesterday to earn the right to represent British Columbia in the Macdonald's Brier Canadian curling championships at Toronto early next month—the first time the province has competed.

Whalen has Bus Broach, a first-year curler, as lead, and Dac Nation and Bill's son, Bill Whalen, Jr., both second-year curlers, as second and third respectively.

Vancouver Lions In Second Place

Defeat Portland Buckaroos 1 to 0 to Gain in Northwest Hockey League; Tip O'Neill Scores Only Goal in Third Period; Goalies Play Well

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Vancouver Lions were in second place in the Northwest Hockey League today by virtue of their 1 to 0 shutout of the husky Portland Buckaroos here yesterday evening. They are now one point ahead of the Bucks and three points behind the league leading Seattle Sea Hawks.

The first two periods featured end-to-end rushes with opposing forwards meeting stalwart defences and even stronger goaltenders in the sensational Andy Aitkenhead and Herb Rheaume.

Brian Hextall started the rush that produced the only goal of the game, when he picked the rubber up at his own blue line and passed to Clint Smith a few feet from the Buckaroo blue line. The high scoring centre carried the disc in on top of Aitkenhead and let go with a hard shot from just outside the crease. Tip O'Neill came in lightning fast to deflect Smith's shot to the open side of the net.

STAGE FIGHT

One minute after O'Neill scored his counter, Hextall worked in close, and Sutherland, Buckaroo defence star, caught the "rookie" in the eye with his stick when attempting to check him. Hextall considered the affair no accident an turned on Ron. They both went to the ice with fists flailing and received two minutes in the cooler for staging the added attraction.

Hextall was penalized two minutes from the end of the game and with the advantage of an extra man, Portland stormed the Lion net. Clint Smith showed to advantage by regging the puck, but Herb Rheaume, Lion goalie was even more brilliant when he saved with three Portlanders on top of his cage.

Line-ups follow:

Portland—Aitkenhead, J. Arbour, Sutherland, Blyth, Coupez and Pratt; subs, Scott, Jempson, Hemmerling and Chris Sorenson.

Vancouver — Rheaume, Hutton, Creasy, Smith, O'Neill and Hextall; subs, Mercer, Sheppard, Carse and Balm.

Referees—Bernie Morris and Pete Sande.

SUMMARY

First period—No scoring. Penalty, Scott.

Second period—No scoring. Penalties, Coupez, Pratt, Hextall, Hemmerling.

Third period—1, Vancouver, O'Neill (Smith), 11.1. Penalties, Sutherland, Hextall (2).

Steele Meets Young Stuhley

Los Angeles, Feb. 25.—Freddie Steele, Tacoma's ranking contender for the middleweight championship, faces a hard ten-round test tonight against Young Stuhley, chicago.

The Washington ringman was favored in betting odds, 10 to 9, to keep his three-year string of victories unbroken, but Stuhley collected eight decisions in a row on his last visit here several seasons ago, fans recalled.

HOPE TO STOP SOCCER POOLS

English Football League Will Not Announce Week-end Games Until Friday

London, Feb. 25.—Further action has been taken by the English Football League in its attempt to prevent the operation of pools on week-end soccer fixtures.

F. Howarth, secretary of the league, announced today it was unlikely that fixtures for Saturday would be announced until late Friday night. Earlier it had been intimated the list of matches would be issued on Thursday. Clubs traveling long distances would be notified by telegram, the secretary said, and the remainder by post.

It is felt in many quarters, however, that fixtures for Saturday will remain unchanged.

BRITISH GOLF STARS TRAIN

Amateur Players Will Make Great Attempt to Lift Famous Walker Cup

London, Feb. 25.—British amateur golfers, who have never won the Walker cup from the United States, are going "all out" to capture the international trophy this summer.

Critics here blamed Britain's repeated failures in the competition to the fact that golfers on this side of the Atlantic go about their advance training too casually. In fact, Lawson Little, the husky Californian, twice winner of the British amateur championship, drew gasps of astonishment when he "tuned up" for his daily matches by whacking out fifty or a hundred practice balls.

Now the top-flight amateurs already are going into training for the Walker cup matches in the United States, at the Pine Valley Club, Clementon, N.J., September 2-3. One of them, Harry Bentley, Lancashire, has gone to Belgium to take a six weeks' course under Henry Cotton, the former British open champion. Others are practicing long hours daily at local clubs.

Some front-rank clubs are considering a plan to have every club professional take charge of the two leading amateur players in his club and play with them for a year without pay.

Smythe's Action Draws Criticism

Montreal, Feb. 25. — Montreal Maroons yesterday filed two complaints with President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League in connection with last Saturday's game in Toronto against the Maple Leafs.

While Manager Tommy Gorman conceded that Leafs earned their 1 to 0 victory through taking an edge on the play, he protested Manager Connie Smythe's "behavior" around the penalty timekeeper's box and the soft condition of the ice.

Drumheller Takes Third Ice Crown

Calgary, Feb. 25. — Drumheller Miners won their third straight Southern Alberta Senior Hockey League title yesterday evening by defeating Calgary Bronks, 1 to 0—the race score they won by in the first game at Drumheller Saturday. The Miners will meet Coleman Canadians in the next round of the Alberta playdowns.

Tommy Burgess Now Living Here

After an absence of seven years, during which time he toured United States and Europe, Tommy Burgess, well-known lightweight fighter, is back in Victoria. With his wife and family Burgess has taken up permanent residence here.

Burgess toured Europe with Al Foreman, who at that time held the British Empire lightweight championship.

Previous to his return here Burgess was located in Calgary for eighteen months, where he managed the Randolph Athletic Club. During his stay in the Alberta city Burgess developed Robin Carrington, who won the Canadian amateur lightweight championship at last year's Dominion tournament at Edmonton.

Brooklyn Secures Newark Youngster

New York, Feb. 25.—Following up the sale of Sam Leslie to the New York Giants for a reported price of $20,000, Brooklyn Dodgers Saturday took another step in their reconstruction programme by acquiring John (Buddy) Hassett, sensational young first baseman, from the Newark Internationals.

To obtain Hassett, less than three years out of Manhattan College and a "farm" product of the New York Yankees, Brooklyn turned over two players and a "substantial sum in cash" to Newark, according to announcement by John Gorman, Dodger business manager.

BELANGER BEATEN

Chicago, Feb. 25 (Associated Press)—Otis Thomas, Chicago negro, won an unpopular decision over Charley Belanger, Winnipeg heavyweight, in ten rounds here yesterday evening.

Thomas weighed 202 to Belanger's 181½.

Newcomers Forge To Front In Major Hockey Scoring List

Romnes Is Now Setting Pace In American Group

Chicago Star Replaces Cecil Dillon as Leader; Hooley Smith on Rampage

Schriner Still Tops All Snipers

Montreal, Feb. 25.—Heavy firing along several fronts resulted in spectacular gains by almost a dozen players and changed the grouping of leaders in both sections, weekly statistics of the National Hockey League showed yesterday evening. Hooley Smith, Montreal Maroons' star centre, bounded up in the lists with nine additional points during the week, three goals and six assists, for the best gain. Others to advance rapidly were Dave Schriner, Americans, four; Larry Northcott, Maroons, five; Nels Stewart, Americans, six; Eddie Wiseman, Americans, five; Jimmy Ward, Maroons, five; Doc Romnes, Chicago, five; Paul Thompson, Chicago, four, and Mush March, Chicago, six.

DILLON LOSES LEAD

After the shooting was over Cecil Dillon, New York Rangers, had been ousted from his first place in the United States section by both Romnes and Thompson. Romnes' eleven goals, twenty-one assists, thirty-two points, gave him first position with Thompson, a point back with 15-16-31, and Dillon next, 18-11-29.

In the Canadian section, Schriner held his group leadership and top position in the whole league with 16-21-37. Smith was second with 17-15-32; Chapman third, 9-22-31, and Northcott fourth, 12-18-30. Charlie Conacher and Bill Thoms, Toronto, were pushed out of the first four by Smith and Northcott.

Dillon still led the league with most goals, eighteen, with Smith second. Tops in assists were Chapman's twenty-two. Red Horner, Maple Leafs, continued to visit the penalty box frequently to reach 138 minutes, by far the league's highest figure.

A feature of the game was the way in which Bill Wallis and Hank Rowe darted in after the rebounds and scored basket after basket for the Blacks. Rowe led the Blacks with twenty-six points and Bladen led Mount Douglas with eight points.

At half-time the Blacks were leading 40 to 9.

Bob Macmurchie refereed.

Great Clubs Fight To Retain Records

Aston Villa and Blackburn Rovers Make Gallant Struggle to Escape Relegation to Second Division in English Football; Teams Have Proud History

London, Feb. 25.—In 1888 Aston Villa and Blackburn Rovers, who have since became famous in the world of soccer, were among the clubs who formed the English Football League. Today the teams, alone of the original twelve to have remained constantly in the first division, are in danger of having their proud colors lowered.

Wherever soccer is played there is dismay at the position of these great clubs. With less than three months of the season remaining, they are bracketed in last place and seem doomed to relegation to the second division next season.

Aston Villa, most colorful of the pair, has been struggling to emerge from its slump for months and the money chests of this Birmingham team have been depleted to the extent of approximately $200,000 in an effort to put a winning eleven in the field. But the efforts have failed and the star-studded side continues to give only mediocre displays.

On the other hand the Blackburn squad, after starting the season in good form, began to slip in November and since the turn of the year decline has been rapid. Blackburn's directors have nothing like the big financial resources of the Villa to enter the transfer market and the Lancashire club's fate seems inevitable.

GREAT RECORD

Few people can remember the sum total of the Villans' national triumphs. They have been league champions six times, five time in seven season back in the 90s. In 1897 they won both the English cup and the league championship, a double feat equalled only once, by Preston North End. Moreover that year they won the championship by the record margin of eleven points. Blackburn's league career has not been so outstanding as the Lancastrians have been champions on only two occasions. Always, however, they have been regarded among the most powerful outfits in the league.

In English cup play, the careers of Aston Villa and the Rovers shine more brightly than any other clubs in the league. The teams share the honor of each having won the trophy six times and they have each fought thirteen times in the semi-final round.

The amount of money expended by Aston Villa this season on new players constitutes a record. In November and December, six players, all of international calibre, were added to the Birmingham team's roster. George Cummings, great international back of Partick Thistle, and Alex Massie, Heart of Midlothian halfback, even more famous in the ranks of representative teams north of the border, came from Scotland. Tom Griffiths, another middle line player, mainstay of the defence on Welsh international teams, was transferred from Middlesbrough. The sextette was completed with J. Palethorpe, Sheffield Wednesday, J. J. Williams, Huddersfield Town, and G. Hodgson, a South African from the Liverpool club.

Of these players Palethorpe was operated on for appendicitis recently and is not likely to play again this season, while Griffiths has missed several matches through injury.

While the position of the two clubs is precarious it is possible they may yet get out of the danger zone. In the first season after the Great War the Villans made a very poor start. On November 2 that year they were in second last place with seven points from twelve matches. It was at this time that they signed Frank Barson from Barnsley and when the new year dawned they were eighth from the top. They eventually finished ninth and won the English cup.

M'AVOY WINNER IN DULL FIGHT

Philadelphia, Feb. 25.—Jock McAvoy, England's classy two-weight champion, got into swing yesterday evening for his coming light-heavyweight title bout with an easy decision win over Anson Green, rugged Homestead, Pa., negro, in a ten-round fight at the Arena.

Seven thousand fans saw the light-heavyweight and middleweight British champion take a lead in the first round and increase it right up to the finishing bell in a dull contest.

McAvoy weighed 167½ and Green scaled 164 pounds.

Billy Evans Now With Boston Sox

Former General Manager of Cleveland Ball Team Becomes Head of Farm System of Red Sox; Will Make Contacts and Agreements With Minor Clubs

Boston, Feb. 25.—The faucet that has poured almost four millions of dollars into the American League probably closed suddenly today following the appointment of Billy Evans, former Cleveland Indians general manager, as head of the Boston Red Sox farm syst m.

Evans, who has discovered on sand lot players as capable as those owner Tom Yawkey has spent hundreds of thousands for, will expand the Red Sox farming properties immediately. They now include only ownership of the Rocky Mount Club in the class B Piedmont League and working agreements with the Syracuse International League club and Little Rock and Memphis in the Southern Association.

Evans's appointment was announced by Yaw ey's general manager, Canny Eddie Collins, who hastened to xplain that the Red Sox did not intend to copy the highly successful methods employed by the St. Louis Cardinals, operatives of baseball's so-called chain gang.

WANT CONTACTS

"We do not plan any extensive farm system, such as the St. Louis Cardinals operate," said Collins. "We want contacts and agreements with minor league teams. That is why Evans was sought for the position.

"I talked to him about it last Friday for the first time. He was in Cleveland. Tom Yawkey and I met him in New York and came to an agreement there yesterday.

"We have felt that we could not continue paying prohibitive prices for new players and we decided that we would have to rely upon some reasonable methods of obtaining our replacements. W believe Evans is the man we want."

PUZZLE GROUP BEFORE COURT

British Enter-Prizes, Promoters of "Cross-Etts," Fined $100

British Enter-prizes Limited, a company formed to conduct crossword puzzle contests, whose operations extended throughout British Columbia and included all parts of Canada and some subscribers in California, was fined $100 in the City Police Court this morning when a plea of guilty was entered to a charge of conducting a lottery scheme.

A large quantity of literature, including several hundred entry blanks and files containing the names of hundreds of subscribers was seized by police and produced in court.

Inspector Boulton gave evidence of the seizure, made in offices in the Pemberton Building. The sealed solution to one of the contests was also taken from a lawyer's office in the same building. A total of $17 in cash was taken.

The inspector said he had looked over the entries and investigated the various solutions to the puzzles, which were known as "Cross-Etts."

A subscriber would have to submit about sixty-four entries, at two entries for twenty-five cents, to enter all possible solutions to the puzzle. This, the inspector said, made the contest a game of chance.

Stuart Henderson, counsel for the company, said he had advised the company to go out of existence as a result of the seizure.

Magistrate Jay commented it appeared to be a very wide scheme.

BIBLE READING ISSUE REVIVED

Victoria Presbytery in Favor of Scripture Reading in Public Schools

Reading of the Bible in public schools came in for considerable discussion by delegates to the twenty-second session of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church in Metropolitan Church this morning.

The following motion, introduced by Rev. Dr. G. B. Switzer, convener of the committee on evangelization and social service, was passed: "We again raise the question of the necessity of a greater use of the Bible for the enrichment of life:

"We recommend to the attention of our ministers that greater attention be given to expository preaching;

"We recommend that Christian parents be urged to read with their families the great passages of biblical literature.

"We further recommend that request be made by the secretary of this Presbytery to the Minister of Education for a larger choice of selective readings from the Bible in our public schools."

An addition to the motion, moved by T. C. Colwell was voted down. It was as follows: "That this resolution be amended to include a recommendation that a half hour per week be given by a local ordained minister in the public schools."

Rev. Thomas Keyworth said he understood there was no ban on reading the Bible in the schools, providing there was no sectarian teaching.

R. G. Howell thought greater emphasis on the matter should be given in the Legislature. He felt that it should be made obligatory that some portion of the Scriptures be read every day in the public schools, and that there should be freer and fuller use of the Bible in the Sunday schools to give greater emphasis to Bible teaching.

Warning against forwarding a blanket request on the question to the government, was given by Rev W. R. Brown.

Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson expressed the view that Christian people could have the Scriptures read in the schools whenever they wanted, providing secretarianism was not introduced. He said he believed it could be made compulsory as soon as the major denominations made a selection of the Scripture passages desired to be used in the schools.

It was pointed out by Mr. Keyworth that the issue had been before the government previously, but the measure had been withdrawn for want of unanimity.

ONE HUNDRED AND TWO YEARS OLD TODAY

Standing between his grand-nephew, Archie Doherty, and a friend, Bill Jeffries, members of the Provincial Police Force, and both of Victoria, is John Wesley Woodworth, grand old man of Vancouver, who celebrated his 102nd birthday at his home on the mainland today.

Born in Albert County, N.B., Mr. Woodworth has lived in the reign of four Kings and one Queen of England, King George IV, Queen Victoria, King Edward VII, King George V and King Edward VIII.

A farmer all his life, Mr. Woodworth tilled the soil of the place in which he was born for three-quarters of a century. He moved out to the Pacific Coast twenty-five years ago.

The centenarian is in such good health that he does not even wear glasses. He puts down his remarkable age to leading a "Christian life." He does not smoke or drink.

Ever since he was a young man, Mr. Woodworth has been interested in politics and he is proud of the fact that for the last seventy-seven years he has been a staunch Liberal.

Mr. Woodworth has a niece, Mrs. Fred Doherty, who lives at 1051 Princess Avenue, Victoria, and a grand-nephew, Herbie Doherty, who was quite well known here and is now at the home of his granduncle in Vancouver.

HEATING PLAN BIDS OPENED

City to Inspect Equipment Before Deciding on Tender

Further details on four tenders opened by the public works executive of the City Council yesterday were being sought today before any action was taken on the establishment of a new heating system for the City Hall.

The tenders ranged from $5,438 to $5,880 and covered installation of a two-pipe steam and vacuum heating system. Different parts of the equipment suggested in the tenders will be inspected before a bid is accepted, it was learned today.

There is a possibility a second-hand boiler in good repair may be utilized in place of a new one if it meets requirements.

Over a period of years, it was stated, the economy in fuel would completely cover the costs of purchase and installation of the proposed new plant.

EGGS REACH PEAK PRICE

Shortage in City as Market Bounds Up Another Three Cents Today

A shortage of eggs grips the city today as prices bounded to the highest in history.

The market leaped three cents a dozen this morning for the sharpest rise during the cold spell. Wholesale quotations are now: Grade A large, thirty-five cents a dozen; grade A medium, thirty-three cents, and grade A pullet, thirty-two cents a dozen.

This is thirteen cents higher than on the same day last year, when wholesalers were selling eggs for twenty-two, twenty-one and twenty cents a dozen.

The general impression that when the snow melts prices of eggs will go down was dispelled this morning by wholesalers, who said that the market would probably continue high for some time as many birds in flocks on the Island and mainland had gone into a moult on account of the cold weather. This will stop them laying for five or six weeks.

There is a definite shortage of eggs everywhere, wholesalers say. Calgary has been buying eggs from the United States and paying forty cents a dozen for them laid down in the city, according to reports.

In the opinion of inspectors and dealers of long standing, the present egg prices are absolutely the highest for this time of the year in the history of the market.

Condolence To Royal Family

Legislature Passes Resolutions; Swears Fealty To New Monarch

The legislature this afternoon passed silent standing votes of condolence and loyalty to the Royal family of Britain. The text of the two motions, each moved by Premier Pattullo and seconded by Rev. Robert Connell, Leader of the Opposition, is as follows:

"That a humble address be presented to His Gracious Majesty King Edward VIII, in the following words: "To the King's Most Excellent Majesty; Most Gracious Sovereign;—"We, Your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the members of the Legislative Assembly of British Columbia, in Parliament assembled, humbly approach Your Majesty with sentiments of profound sorrow at the death of our late revered sovereign, King George V., and beg to extend to Your Majesty sincere sympathy in your bereavement which we share most deeply with Your Majesty, Queen Mary, the Duke and Duchess of York, and the other members of the Royal Family.

"We rejoice in the accession of Your Majesty to the Throne. We are deeply appreciative of Your Majesty's intimate knowledge of the varied problems, aims and high resolves of the many peoples and countries within the British Commonwealth of Nations and the Empire. Under Your Majesty's guidance and reign we look with confidence and faith towards the future, and beg to assure Your Majesty of our loyalty and devotion."

MESSAGE TO QUEEN MARY

That the following message of condolence be sent to Her Majesty Queen Mary:

"Your Majesty:—We, the members of the Legislature of British Columbia, respectfully tender to Your Majesty our heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow and bereavement. On behalf of the people of this Province of British Columbia, who share your grief and bereavement, may we assure Your Majesty of the deep regard and affection which Your Majesty inspired as consort and helpmeet of our late beloved sovereign, King George V."

ROYAL ARCANUM ENJOYS GROWTH

The Royal Arcanum is enjoying great growth in the Pacific Northwest, according to John L. Matthiesen, Spokane, grand regent of the Arcanum in Washington and British Columbia, who arrived at the Empress Hotel yesterday.

The Arcanum had show an excellent net gain in December, and although the January figures were not yet available, it was understood that the month had also showed considerable progress.

Mr. Matthiesen paid tribute to the work of Carl Stocker, vice-grand regent, who will be elevated to the office of grand regent at the convention of the Royal Arcanum, to be held here in June. Mr. Stocker will be the second Victorian to hold the honored office. The first was John L. Beckwith.

The holding of the convention here, said Mr. Matthieson, would be a compliment both to the city and to Mr. Stocker.

MARKET NOTES

Price changes in fruit and vegetables today were upward, according to advices received from wholesale row.

Butter moved up a cent; eggs jumped 3 cents; oranges advanced 10 to 50 cents a case which means a rise of one to five cents a dozen; while rhubarb was up one half cent a pound. Most of these changes were due to the weather.

* * *

The first Florida new potatoes of the season are now on sale in local stores. They will pass across the counter for between eleven and thirteen cents a pound.

* * *

A carload of oranges and a carload of lettuce from California were unloaded at the outer wharf yesterday. A carload of Newton apples also arrived in the city yesterday. Tomorrow wholesalers are looking forward to shipments of a carload of mixed California vegetables (mostly parsley and cauliflowers).

Funeral services for Timothy Francis Bradley, who passed away Thursday, were conducted yesterday morning at Our Lady Queen of Peace Church, Rev. Father A. B. Wood celebrating mass. CLUB MERGER IS APPROVED

Pacific Members Vote to Accept Offer to Go Into Union

Approval of the proposal for merger of the Pacific Club into the Union Club was voted 95 to 24 by members of the Pacific Club at an extraordinary meeting yesterday evening. The two are about the oldest clubs on the Pacific Coast north of San Francisco. The merger is now subject to final ratification by the Union Club executive which originated the proposal and set out the terms now accepted by the Pacific membership.

The Pacific will vacate the Pemberton building, where it has occupied the whole of the top and part of the fifth floors for a quarter of a century, and transfer such of its furnishings as found suitable to the Union Club building. To find permanent places on the Union Club walls there will also go the Pacific Club's outstanding collection of moose heads and its framed collection of early B.C. original pictures, including that of Sa-Beaver on the rocks at the entrance to Vancouver harbor, scenes on the Cariboo Road in stagecoach days and early views of Victoria back to the fort days.

The Union Club, its $400,000 building overlooking the Empress Hotel grounds and harbor recognized as one of the finest and most complete club plants on the continent, has accommodation for more than its present city membership of 200 and outside membership of over 200. The merger will add between 150 and 200 members from the Pacific, thus using its facilities more nearly to the full and putting it on a strong financial basis.

Pacific Club members will receive six months' membership in the Union without dues, life members of the Pacific will have their life membership transferred to the Union and the secretarial and house staff at the Pacific will be all taken care of by being absorbed into the larger staff that will be needed at the Union.

OPPOSE HOTEL SALE OF BEER

Establishment of Brewery at Esquimalt Also Condemned By Presbytery

Vigorous protest was made at the Metropolitan United Church this morning by the delegates to the twenty-second session of the Victoria Presbytery of the United Church of Canada against the proposal to serve beer and light wines in hotels and restaurants.

A resolution which will be forwarded to the provincial government strongly opposing any attempt to put through such legislation was unanimously passed by the delegates.

Similar action was taken by the Presbytery on the proposal to establish a brewery in the municipality of Esquimalt.

The brewery license question was raised by Rev. W. R. Brown, whose resolution called for strenuous "opposition to the granting of licenses to new breweries."

Mr. Brown said he resided near one brewery and if the establishment of them was allowed to go on he would soon be "surrounded by breweries."

Rev. E. P. Church expressed the view that the source of the matter was not in the brewery itself but in the public demand.

Fred Davey said the policy was to oppose the increase of facilities for the manufacture of beer.

Improvement In Rentals Noted

Indications of a slight increase in rentals and a small but encouraging growth in the number of new homes in the city were noted today by George Okell, city assessor-collector, following early work carried out towards the making of next year's assessment roll.

While the number of water services canceled at the end of last December were fractionally lower than they were the preceding year, new homes had more than offset the apparent loss of tenants indicated through water service cancellation Mr. Okell noted.

Satisfactory progress was being made with the assessment survey for the 1937 roll, he said. Noting the increase in building over last year, he pointed to that as a healthy sign which, if increased to a sufficient extent, would materially aid the city in bringing up the number of taxpayers.

Rentals appeared to him better in apartment houses, and certain downtown rooming houses were reported full for the first time in a considerable number of months, Mr. Okell said.

F. B. Pemberton Sent to Trial

F. B. Pemberton was committed for trial by Magistrate Jay in the City Police Court this morning on a charge of stealing $3,000 from John Glover of Marigold.

The decision of Magistrate Jay to send the case to a higher court reversed the judgment of Alexis Martin, stipendiary magistrate, who three weeks ago dismissed the case at the preliminary hearing. The charge was laid again, however, with Alex Brethour acting for the informant.

In handing down his decision Magistrate Jay reviewed all features of the case, saying he did not think the relations of Mr. Pemberton and Mr. Glover were those of debtor and creditor, as contended by H. A. Maclean, defence counsel, in his argument when the hearing closed last week.

Mr. Pemberton was liberated early this afternoon on $3,000 bail ordered by Judge Lampman.

GERMANY SUES PARIS PAPER

Nazis Bring Action Against Le Journal For Story on Hitler's "Love Life"

Canadian Press from Havas

Paris, Feb. 25.—The German Government yesterday brought suit in the French courts against the newspaper Le Journal, which last Saturday published alleged revelations regarding Chancellor Hitler's "Love Life."

The suit was brought under the law of 1883, covering insults to foreign chiefs of state, and was instituted through the French Foreign Office.

The powerful national federation of French newspapers immediately accused authorities of an unwarranted encroachment on the freedom of the press in confiscating the magazine issue in which the article appeared.

The article described the German Chancellor's alleged liaison with "his secretary, confidante and inspiration," Greta Granbald, who in 1930 was found dead on her bed with a bullet through her brain.

The action of the German Government was placed before an examining magistrate empowered to decide whether to throw the case out or submit it to the correctional court for judgment.

Canadian Press from Havas

Paris, Feb. 25.—The newspaper Le Journal charged today that police had raided its office and seized its thirteen file copies of the banned Sunday supplement carrying what was represented to be an expose of the "love life" of Chancellor Hitler.

Charges of the raid, which followed confiscation of newstand copies of the edition, were made as representatives of the paper prepared to appear in court to answer a suit brought by the German Government against Le Journal for publication of the article.

TWO CONVICTS GIVEN REPRIEVES

Associated Press

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 25.—Alexander MacKay, British subject sentenced to be executed next Friday, was granted a ninety-day reprieve by Governor Frank Merriam yesterday.

MacKay, formerly of Montreal, was convicted of participating in a San Quentin prison break and kidnapping January 15, 1935. The British Government asked clemency.

Governor Merriam also granted a ninety-day reprieve to Joe Kristy, another convict who participated in the prison break. Kristy, a citizen of this country, has pending an appeal from the death sentence.

Empire Theatre Opens With Immortal Love Story

"Lorna Doone," the immortal love story from the pen of R. D. Blackmore will open at the Empire Theatre on Thursday for a three-day engagement.

Victoria Hopper and John Loder play the leading roles of Lorna and Jan.

The added attractions include "The Reign of King George V" and "Our Distant Cousins."

JEAN HARLOW TO BE STARRED HERE

The sea, man's last unconquered frontier, is once more the background for the vital beauty of Jean Harlow.

With Spencer Tracy as her leading man, she appears in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Riffraff," opening tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre.

It is a story of the primitive emotions of men and women who go down to the sea in ships, wresting an existence from the constant struggle with the deep.

Like "China Seas," in which she starred with Clark Gable and Wallace Beery, "Riffraff" gives Miss Harlow a tremendous opportunity to display her dramatic ability. The story is by Frances Marion and was directed by J. Walter Ruben.

JOHN GOSS AND LONDON SINGERS

The programme to be given by John Goss and his London Singers at the Empire Theatre on Monday, March 2, is one quite out of the usual run of concert programmes.

These five men are all one-time professional men, drawn together by their love of music, who agreed to give up their calling and make music their vocation. And thus the London Singers came into being, with John Goss as their leader.

They gave their first concert in this country in 1931, acquiring an immediate popularity. For it was discovered that at one of their concerts one had a grand time. Even the serious-minded music-lover found that it was not beneath his dignity to smile. In fact, it is a moot question whether anyone could sit through the London Singers' rendering of "Lillibulero," that great old anti-Jacobite melody without giving vent to quite audible mirth.

In some of their songs the singers forsake the straight platform manner and give their selections a comedy relief.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Adolphe Menjou has come to the conclusion that both he and his wife, Verree Teasdale, are extremely susceptible to outside influences.

During work on "The Milky Way," in which both are importantly cast, Menjou plays the role of a prize-fight manager suffering from stomach trouble, he was suddenly severe to force immediate hospital treatment and blood transfusions. Miss Teasdale, worrying about his condition, collapsed and was removed to the same hospital, and placed in an adjoining room.

"The Milky Way," starring Harold Lloyd, is now at the Capitol Theatre.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

"MONA LISA" IN BRIDGE

By WM. E. McKENNEY

Today's hand is another taken from the collection of auction plays described by A. R. Metcalfe, back in 1923-24. This hand was known as the "Mona Lisa" deal and was rated by Metcalfe as the prettiest hand at auction bridge.

Metcalfe said the beautiful part of this hand was that you had to play the entire hand out in your mind before starting to play.

The opening lead was read by declarer as a singleton. It was won in dummy with the king of diamonds. The eight of spades was played from dummy, declarer playing the six. Declarer then followed with the ten of spades from dummy, in case South held the king-seven; but South had to play the king, and the ace won.

At this point, it was very important that a club be led and the ten spot finessed. South won this trick with the jack. The natural return was the queen of hearts, which held. The jack of hearts was ruffed with a high spade.

A small club was played and won in dummy with the ace. A club was returned and ruffed with the jack of spades.

You will notice that declarer was careful to conserve the three of spades, and now he played it and won in dummy with the four spot. South discarded a heart. The nine of hearts was returned and ruffed by declarer with the queen of spades.

Declarer had read North's opening lead for a singleton, so this left South with nothing but diamonds. The five of diamonds was played by declarer, the nine from dummy and South had to win the trick with the jack.

Regardless of which diamond South returned, declarer was sure to make the last two tricks and his contract.

Today's Contract Problem

South made an opening two-heart bid and now is playing the contract at four hearts. Declarer can make his contract unless East tries an unusually fine defensive play. An interesting hand, both from the offensive and defensive angles.

North: ♠ 10 6 3 2 ♥ 3 ♦ Q J 10 8 ♣ 9 7 5 4

FINE CAST AT THE DOMINION

Warner Baxter, Jack Oakie and Alice Faye in "King of Burlesque"

"No pretty faces for me. I've seen them all my life. What I want is something with class!"

As a master purveyor of entertainment in his role in "King of Burlesque," now at the Dominion Theatre, Warner Baxter utters that speech, before he launches into the search for "better things."

Assisted by his tw faithful friends, Jack Oakie and Alice Faye, Baxter has cut a swath in the theatrical world, rising from a fourteenth street burlesque, to become a producer of Broadway extravaganzas.

The entertainment of "King of Burlesque" centres about the exciting and gay production scenes which 20th Century-Fox has provided. To the five scintillating tunes which Jimmy McHugh and Ted Koehler have provided, the stellar supporting cast dances, sings and provides fun. "Lovely Lady" and "Shooting High" are two of the songs, already widely popular. Another hit is "I Love to Ride the Horses on a Merry-Go-Round" by Jack Yellen and Lew Pollack.

Also being shown are Lew Ayres and Mae Clarke in the "Silk Hat Kid."

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Glamorous romance, beautiful women, whimsical humor and the haunting strains of Franz Lehar's famous music blend into an entertainment of indescribable charm in Ernst Lubitsch's production of "The Merry Widow," now playing at the Playhouse Theatre.

With Mourice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald as co-stars, singing the world-beloved song hits and enacting the whimsical romance of the musical masterpiece, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer staged the picture on a massive scale unique in the production of this type of picture. Deft "Lubitsch touches" add to its continental gayety and spicy humor.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Anna May Wong, as the Chinese wife of John Loder in "Java Head," now at the Columbia Theatre, utters a piece of Oriental philosophy which might be followed by modern European spouses with advantage.

Her husband says to her, "In England that would be thought funny."

"Then I will laugh, like a dutiful wife," she replies, "and after, you can explain to me what it means."

"Blue Chips" Among Victims of Sharp Wall Street Relapse

New York, Feb. 25.—After drifting dully for four hours today, stock market prices suffered a sharp relapse at the beginning of the final period.

Numerous losses of 1 to 4 or more points were recorded at the height of the selling wave. The movement flattened out before the finish, but the close was weak. Transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares.

At the peak of the downturn the ticker tape fell about eight minutes behind floor transactions.

The so-called "blue chips" were the principal victims. Many issues, at the same time, only gave ground fractionally. A few sugar, merchandising and specialty equities managed to buck the trend.

Brokers were somewhat puzzled by the quick slide, although the recent action of the list indicated to some that a sizeable technical correction was overdue.

Wheat rallied, but other commodities were mixed. Cotton pointed lower. Bonds were irregular. The dollar was up in terms of foreign exchanges.

Shares of Holly Sugar, Fajardo, Midland Steel, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck were among the scattered gainers. The principal casualties included U.S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler, Auburn, Du Pont, Case, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Western Union, Anaconda Kennecott, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern and Delaware and Hudson.

MINES SLUMP AT TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 25. — Prices tumbled in some disorder this afternoon on the Toronto mining board when a selling drive undermined the New York list. Losses were the heaviest recorded in months.

Noranda dropped 1⅝ to 48. Dome more than a point to 47 and McIntyre a point to 43½.

During the early session the price tone had held fairly steady with a few gains and losses showing over the board. Coniarum advanced to 2.60 and when the selling began it was as weak as the others. The close around 2.41 was off 5 cents.

Central Patricia lost four cents, Little Long Lac dropped 15 cents to 7.05 and recessions among the others ranged from 5 to 10 cents for Sylvanite, San Antonio, Siscoe, Macassa, Buffalo-Ankerite, God's Lake and Pickle Crow. Wright-Hargreaves and Pioneer were down 30 to 40 cents each and Teck-Hughes about 5 cents.

During the first-hour buying rush Falconbridge touched 9.45 and the close around $9 showed a net loss of 35 cents. Ventures weakened more than 10 cents, Sherritt had about an equal set back and Hudson Bay took a loss of about a point. The silvers remained quiet with prices down slightly.

Outside Markets Support Prices On Winnipeg Exchange

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 25.—Support from United States markets and a moderate flurry from local buyers held wheat prices firm on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Wheat prices advanced fractionally, and at the close gains of ⅛ to ⅜ cent a bushel were recorded, May closing at 84¾b, July at 85¼b, and October at 84½.

Firm outside markets, notably Chicago, which was ⅛ to ¼ higher, accounted largely for the strength.

The market throughout was routine. Export business was on a moderate scale, but did not exceed 400,000 bushels.

Liverpool closed ⅜d higher to ¼ to ½d down.

The cash grain market was slow, in keeping with futures. A little buying in barley developed in the coarse grain futures.

MIXED VIEWS ON EDEN'S SPEECH

Germans Welcome "No Encirclement" Statement; Italians Little Moved

Canadian Press from Havas

Berlin, Feb. 25.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech in the House of Commons in London yesterday "contained no suggestion capable of practically modifying the present situation," German political spokesmen said today after studying reports of the debate.

German officials and others were happy to read Mr. Eden's disavowal of any intent to encircle anybody, this being understood as a reference to Germany.

But Mr. Eden's continued references to collective security and his slogan, "Everything with and by the League," arouse German suspicions and mistrust, it was said.

It was regretted Mr. Eden did not go more deeply into the various reported proposals for a redivision of the world's raw materials, or at least a redistribution of their use.

VIEWS IN ITALY

Rome, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press from Havas).—Anthony Eden's speech in the British House of Commons yesterday evoked no special comment or particular reaction in Italy. The impression was the British Foreign Secretary had introduced nothing new into the situation.

Reports that Premier Mussolini had given the German ambassador a detailed questionnaire for Chancellor Hitler and that the replies had been deemed "inadequate," were branded here today as "pure invention."

FRENCH OPINION

Paris, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press from Havas).—Slight hope remains for negotiating Italo-Ethiopian peace in the light of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech before the House of Commons yesterday, Pertinax, political commentator of the Echo de Paris, said today.

Pointing out Mr. Eden hesitated to cast himself into hazardous straits by invoking additional sanctions against Italy, Pertinax declared: "On the other hand, virtually all other diplomatic peace measures were exhausted in December, 1935."

BOND PRICES OFF SLIGHTLY

New York, Feb. 25.—All sections of the list were a little lower in the bond market today. United States issues shifted down slightly on limited turnover.

Italian 7s dipped a small fraction Other foreigns were steady.

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Oil stocks fluctuated mildly in the morning session of the Vancouver stock exchange today.

Most of the activity was in C. & E. and Home Oil. C. & E. shot up to a high at $1.36, where it had an advance of eight cents, then dropped sharply to a low at $1.20, for a net loss of eight cents from the previous close, but recovered to end only two cents lower at $1.26.

Home Oil jumped to a new high at $1.41 for a gain of eight cents, then dropped back 15 cents to a low at $1.25 and closed at $1.30, for a net loss of three cents.

Amalgamated was ½ cent lower at 9½ cents, Mar Jon eased ½ cent to 17½ cents, Merland brought 19 cents, Mercury 17½ cents, Ranchmen's 73 and Dalhousie 69 cents.

Tarzan And the Fire Gods

Niarchus, the high priest, crept toward the two women, his eyes blazing with fanatic fury. The girl Arbela drew close to Lady Beth, trembling with fear, for she knew that the old prophet was capable of inflicting the most horrible cruelties in the name of Baal the bloodthirsty.

Fear gripped the heart of Lady Beth, too, but she preserved an outward calm. She put an arm around the golden Arbela and said: "Remain with me." Arbella did not understand, but there was something in the tone that reassured her, and now her face shone with a new serenity.

Niarchus halted suddenly. The sky-creature had spoken in a strange tongue and the girl Arbela had understood: "What doth she say?" he demanded. Arbela thought quickly. She was the cleverest of the tribe, and she wanted to protect the beautiful visitor from the priest.

"She cometh from on high, bringing a message to the people of Canaan." The elders wailed prayers of thanksgiving. Niarchus merely nodded and said: "Then her sacred person will be unharmed when she standeth before Baal's Pillar, which bringeth death only to sinners!"

The Gumps

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR MISS DIX—Which is the greater coward, the woman who, to avoid scandal and to secure a good home and education for three fine children, lives twenty years with the wrong man; or the woman who, having found the right man, breaks up her home and his? Mine is the not uncommon tragedy of the woman who marries very young, is utterly disenchanted by finding her husband is mean, selfish, tyrannical, almost impossible to live with and then, when it is too late, meets the man who is her ideal.

Had I been alone I should not have hesitated to have broken the marriage bonds that galled me so deeply, but I had three children and no way of supporting them, and for their sake I have carried on. I have changed virtually every habit and my whole character in order to make a peaceful home for them. But what hurts me is this horror of pretending to be happy and satisfied when my whole soul revolts against the situation. Shall I go on being as kind as possible and wishing I were dead? M.S.

Answer—I do not think that you, and women like you, are cowards. I think that every woman who endures the desolation of an unhappy marriage and keeps her home together for the sake of her children is among the bravest of the brave and deserves to have a hero's medal pinned upon her breast.

It is easy to risk your life for another's in some great and spectacular emergency. It is easy to go over the top in the frenzy of battle with the whole world looking on and waiting to applaud your valor. Even a coward's heart has its moment of bravery when the bands play and the flags wave and the troops go swinging by. But it takes a cold courage that few are great enough to feel to give your life, day after day, year after year, for others and make no outcry; to put away the love for which you are starving because you are not free to take it; to give one's own happiness for the sake of others.

Yet this is what millions of women do without ever even thinking of themselves as heroines. For them marriage was a bitter awakening from the dream of love. They found themselves married to husbands whose passion for them was soon over and left them neglected and cold; or to men who were hard and cruel and tyrannical; or to men who were drunkards; or to men who insulted them by their infidelities. They knew they could look for no possible happiness with such husbands and they would gladly have left them and built themselves new lives if they had been alone.

But there were the children. The children whom they had brought unasked into the world and who had a right to a decent upbringing; a right to a peaceful, cheerful home; a right to both a father and mother; a right to an education and to the start in the world that a father could give them; a right to be saved from being those embittered, cynical little creatures with warped and distorted minds and characters that the children become who are torn between mother and father and dragged from one home to another of alienated parents.

So these women shut the doors that would lead to freedom behind them, and they keep the fire burning on their hearthstones and hold their families together and give their children their chance in the world at what price God Himself only knows. And only He knows how they keep their courage up, and what thoughts they are thinking through the long years while they cook and scrub and make cookies, give debutante parties for their daughters, get their boys off to college, and put up with the sneers and complaints of a grouchy man whose faults they try to cover from their children's eyes.

Believe me, the Spartan boy who smiled while the fox gnawed at his vitals was no greater stoic than the woman who covers up the knowledge of her husband's infidelities with such gay cordiality toward him that people wonder if she is ignorant of his affairs.

Many women think that they show courage when they throw their caps over the windmill for the sake of a lover, or when they break up a marriage that proves uncongenial. But they are cowards and quitters. The brave women are those who stand at their posts of duty and fight the good fight until the end. They are those who have earned their Cross of the Legion of Honor.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am suffering from a most terrific inferiority complex. It threatens to ruin my entire life and spoil others. Everything hurts me and I weep and wail over nothing at all, so that I am almost an insane wreck. What shall I do? MISERABLE.

Answer—Quit thinking about yourself so much. An inferiority complex in reality is nothing but colossal conceit. Those who have it are interested in nothing but themselves, think of nothing but themselves, and are miserable because everybody else isn't kowtowing to them.

If you would only realize of how little importance each of us is to the remainder of the world, you would be cured, because you would know that nobody is taking the slightest interest in you, or observing what you have on, whether you are beautiful or ugly, whether you are dull or brilliant. They are thinking about themselves and their affairs and are not considering you at all.

Think about other people, interest yourself in their affairs, try to do something for others and quit bothering about what sort of a figure you cut in the world. That is the remedy for what ails you.

* * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a boy of nineteen, suffering from an awful feeling of loneliness and being left out of things. I have few friends. Speak to few of my fellow students. Am seldom invited to parties. No one seems to want me around except my parents. There is nothing repulsive about me that I know of and I am not hard to look at. I can't confide in anyone for fear of being laughed at or told to grow up. What's wrong with me? DISCOURAGED.

Answer—Adolescence. Many boys get into this morbid frame of mind during the shifting time when they are hobbledehoys, neither men nor boys. It is a sort of mental measles that you will get over if you will just take it easily and quit worrying about it.

You need exercise, physical and mental. Take a part in school athletics. Get a hobby of some sort. That is a great way to get in contact with some congenial boys and girls. And remember that all the world wants friendship, and that all that you have to do to have friends is just to be friendly.

DOROTHY DIX.

Uncle Wiggily and the Sugar Hole

By HOWARD R. GARIS

The day after Uncle Wiggily had found the big brass horn in the woods, and had blown the Bob Cat, as well as some music, out of the large end, the rabbit gentleman had another adventure.

"I'll hop to the woods again today," said Uncle Wiggily, "and see if that horn is still there. Since it is a horn in a big man's band and not one for small animal folk like me, I don't suppose it will be of any use for me to try to use it. Still, if it's there yet maybe I can sell it and get money enough to buy me an umpity-ump horn like Mr. Twistytail!"

But when Uncle Wiggily hopped to the woods the horn was gone. The Bob Cat who had hidden in it to jump out and catch Uncle Wiggily was gone, too.

"Very likely the man who dropped the horn came and got it," said Mr. Longears. "It's just as well he did. That horn cost a lot of money. But as long as I'm here I'll look around and see if I can find an adventure."

As Uncle Wiggily was looking he suddenly heard, near where he stood, a dripping, dropping sound on some old dried leaves that covered the ground.

SOUNDED LIKE RAIN

"Can that be rain?" asked Uncle Wiggily. But the sun was shining, the sky was blue, so it couldn't be rain. Still the dripping, dropping sound was heard again. Then the rabbit gentleman saw what it was.

Near him was a maple tree. It was too early in the year for any spring leaves to show green on the branches. But one branch had been broken by the wind, and from the end of this broken branch something like rain water was dropping upon the dried leaves on the ground.

"Ha! I know what that is!" laughed the rabbit gentleman. "It is nearer spring than I thought. This dripping, dropping is the sap juice running up in the maple tree. The sap has been down in the roots, under ground, all winter. Now it is coming up to help the green leaves come out a little later.

"But, better than this for me, this white sap juice will make maple sugar. I'll make a hole in the tree. It won't hurt it any if I don't make too large a hole. Out of the hole will drop a lot of the sap. I'll let it fall into a pail. Then when I boil the sap in a kettle over a fire, it will get thick like molasses and I can boil it some more and make it into maple sugar. Hurray!"

With his knife Uncle Wiggily bored a hole through the bark into the trunk of the tree. At once some sap, like water, but sweet like sugar oozed out. Into the hole he had made, the rabbit gentleman put a piece of alderberry bush stalk. He made the stalk hollow by pushing out the core of pitch inside. The hollow stalk was then like a spout or a faucet.

HE FALLS ASLEEP

On this spout Uncle Wiggily hung an old tin can he found as he had no time to go get a pail to catch the sap. Drop by drop the sap juice ran from the tree into the tin can. While waiting for the can to fill, Uncle Wiggily sat down on the ground under the tree and fell asleep.

While the rabbit slept, along came shuffling Mr. Stubtail the jolly bear. Now bears are very fond of sweet stuff, you know. As soon as Mr. Stubtail saw the sweep dripping out of the hole in the tree, he took the pail off the alderberry stalk spout and drank it all up.

"Oh, my goodness," cried Uncle Wiggily suddenly awakening and seeing what had happened. "You have taken all my maple sugar sap, Mr. Stubtail!"

"Oh, I didn't know that was yours," laughed the bear. "I'm sorry. I'll help you get some more sap later when it is running faster. That will be nearer spring, you know, in March."

"Oak Hay," said Uncle Wiggily which was a way of saying O.K. without using slang, which isn't polite. So everything was all right, and if the chewing gum doesn't bite off the end of the road, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily changing his hat.

Harrison Forman Expected Sunday From Tibet Aboard Ss. Empress of Canada

Harrison Forman, Oriental scholar at the University of Wisconsin, noted lecturer, magazine writer and author of "Through Forbidden Tibet," as well as a manual on flying, will arrive here on Sunday next aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada.

Possessing a peculiar knowledge of the strange Tibetan land usually barred to white men, Harrison Forman is returning from another visit to that mysterious country. He has flown over Tibet, revisiting the Panchen Llama at Kumbum, where he witnessed a devil dance festival which attracted half a million pilgrims from all parts of Mongolia.

While on his last trip through Tibet Forman renewed acquaintance with Gordon Enders, American-born adviser and purchasing agent of the Llama. Enders, it has been reported, is negotiating for large exports of gold to finance purchase of airplanes for use in Tibet, and Forman likely will be able to throw some light on this rumor as he formerly himself sold airplanes to the Chinese government.

Forman, it is reported here, also made a trek into outer Mongolia, where Soviet Russia and Japan are at loggerheads over territorial invasion and expansion.

Ship Captain Dies Of Burns

Portland, Ore., Feb. 25.—Capt. T. H. Molbach-Nielsen, forty-two years old, master of the Norwegian motorship Oregon Express, died here yesterday from injuries received when he was burned two weeks ago in a fire that swept the cabin of his ship.

His recovery was expected but three days ago his condition suddenly grew worse.

The captain's throat was badly seared when he apparently inhaled flame that shot at him as he opened a door in his cabin.

The only theory advanced for the blaze was that it started from a cigarette in the davenport as the ship lay at anchor here. Members of the crew extinguished the blaze and found Captain Molbach-Nielsen unconscious on the floor of his cabin. This was his first trip to America.

Canadian Cruise Liner In Ceylon

Colombo, Ceylon, Feb. 25.—After three days at this port, the Canadian cruise liner Empress of Britain will sail from here tonight for the Strait Settlements. She will reach Penang Saturday morning.

While here the Britain's 400 passengers from Canada, the United States and Europe have been busy sightseeing. They have visited many places on this island, and have motored to Mount Lavinia, Peradeniya and Kandy. Some have made overnight trips to Nuwara and Eliya.

Since leaving New York early in January the Britain has called at Madeira, South Africa and Bombay.

Ss. Trelissick At Sea Again

Associated Press

Astoria, Ore., Feb. 25.—The British steamer Trelissick, which flashed distress signals 244 miles off the Oregon coast when a bad list developed several days ago, crossed out of the Columbia River yesterday for Sydney, Australia.

The Trelissick was bound from Comox, B.C., to Sydney with 3,800,000 feet of logs and lumber.

The deckload of logs was reloaded at the dock here and eighty-six were left behind to compensate for the damaged ballast tank, which ship's officers said accounted for the list at sea. The ship was escorted to port here by coastguard boats, which answered the distress calls.

Veteran Seaman Has Passed Away

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for James Burns, pioneer sailor who made Vancouver his home port during the days of the old sailing vessels.

Burns was born in 1850 and left his native Glasgow as a youth to take up sea life. He sailed to many parts of the world before arriving here fifty-two years ago. After sailing out of this port for many years he retired and made his permanent home here.

Ships Receive Weather Maps

Four Atlantic Liners Now Testing Out Latest Radio Facsimile Aid

New York, Feb. 25.—Reports received yesterday from four liners on the Atlantic stated reception of complete weather maps by radio facsimile had been successful, according to Charles Pannill, president of the Radiomarine Corporation of America, which has just started the new safety-at-sea service.

The maps, showing winds and barometric pressures over the entire North Atlantic area, are prepared by the United States Weather Bureau. They will be transmitted daily to the liners Deutschland, Il de France, Bergensfjord and Havana on which the necessary extra equipment recently was installed. It is planned to equip all passenger ships with the receiving apparatus.

The new service, it was said, would aid materially in reducing uncertainty about the kind of weather ahead of ships.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucous stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Spring Overhaul of Ships To Start Soon

Much Work Will Be Done to Vessels That Have Been Idle in Inner Harbor All Winter; Princess Victoria to Go Out Shortly

Despite the wintry appearance of the city at present, it will not be long before spring work gets under way in the shipyards and drydocks of Victoria. Plans are already being made for this annual work, which again this year will employ a large number of men.

Victoria's biggest fleet—the Princesses—will be overhauled in the Inner Harbor and at Esquimalt, where they will all go into the Dominion Government's drydock.

All winter men have been at work in the engine-rooms of the two big ships of the fleet, the Princess Marguerite and the Princess Kathleen. The two massive engines have been taken down and have been given a thorough overhaul. This work is tedious and takes many weeks.

INTERIOR WORK

Much other work will be done on the Marguerite and the Kathleen before they resume service in a few months. Gangs of men will shortly be installed on both ships and will make a number of minor changes. All staterooms will be painted and work will also be done on the lounges and smoking-rooms.

One of the first ships to come out of her winter berth will be the veteran Princess Victoria. She has been overhauled during the last few weeks and about March 9 she is expected to go on the triangle run, replacing the Princess Alice.

The Princess Louise has been sleeping in Esquimalt harbor all winter. In another few weeks she will bestir herself and prepare for the Alaska trade.

WHALING FLEET

In the upper reaches of the Inner Harbor the whaling fleet has been idle all winter. Officials of the Consolidated Whaling Corporation have yet made no announcement regarding the 1936 activities of the whalers, but it is expected they will be dispatched again to the whaling grounds off the Queen Charlotte Islands. The local whaling fleet is composed of the W. Grant, the Black, the White, the Green, the Blue, the Brown and the tender Grey, and work on overhaul to them will have to start within the next few weeks.

Another ship which makes Victoria its winter headquarters is the Wm. J. Stewart, of the Dominion Government's hydrographic service. She has been idle in the Inner Harbor since the autumn, but will probably be away at sea again by Easter.

Just where the Stewart will go this year has not been decided. Last season she did extensive work off the west coast of the Queen Charlotte Islands and much still remains to be done there.

She will require the usual overhaul before she leaves port.

One of the biggest spurts to the trade of the port of Victoria will be the resumption of service between the Pacific northwest and California by the ships of the Pacific Steamship Lines. The Emma Alexander and the Ruth Alexander are expected to start service again at the end of April and will be joined later in the season by the H. F. Alexander.

PASSENGERS GO ASHORE

After Spending Several Days on Disabled Ss. Nova Scotia, They Disembark

Hamilton, Bermuda, Feb. 25.—The disabled Furness Withy steamship Nova Scotia landed her 103 passengers here yesterday after seas had abated enough to allow the propellerless vessel to be towed into port.

Many of the passengers intended to leave here for New York on a Munson liner today, although Furness Withy officials in New York announced they were prepared to give them passage on their Monarch of Bermuda, sailing tomorrow.

The Queen of Bermuda sailed for New York Sunday after delaying her departure twenty-four hours to pick up the Nova Scotia's passengers. Heavy seas prevented them being transferred from the helpless liner after she had been towed to a point four miles off Bermuda Friday night by the freighter Eastern Prince of the same line.

The Nova Scotia sent out distress calls last Wednesday when she lost her propeller off the coast of Florida in a storm. Passengers remained contented and happy during the experience after Captain Murphy assured them that there was little danger and that two ships, within seventy-five miles, were coming to their aid.

AUSTRALIA BUYS MUCH IN CANADA

Is This Country's Third Best Customer, L. R. MacGregor Says in Toronto

Toronto, Feb. 25.—Australia is Canada's third best customer, L. R. MacGregor, Australian trade commissioner, told the Board of Trade at a dinner here yesterday.

Last year, he said, Australia had purchased 28,000 automobiles from this Dominion, as well as vast quantities of newsprint, lumber and canned salmon. The Canadian-Australian trade agreement made this possible.

The present trade balance between Canada and Australia was three to one in Canada's favor, and was likely to stay that way, said Mr. MacGregor, because Canada had no interest in Australia's major industries—dairy products, meat and wheat.

The main products Australia is anxious to sell to Canada are: Raisins, currants, wine, raw sugar, canned fruits and wool tufts, said the commissioner.

Canada and Australia are naturally closely bound by the ties of race, and as members of the British Empire, said Mr. MacGregor, adding that 97 per cent of Australians were British

Plan Special Banff Trips

News of particular interest to skiers and winter sport enthusiasts of the Pacific Coast was released this morning from the Passenger Department of the Canadian Pacific Railway, with the announcement that special round-trip bargain fares from Vancouver to Banff, also from Nanaimo, Victoria and New Westminster, to the winter playground, will be available on March 5, to be used that day.

Good for coach travel and on the 9.30 p.m. train only, this special bargain fare to the mecca of winter activities has been well received during the past few years, and has been the means of opening up a skiing territory acclaimed the best in the world. Passengers from Vancouver Island will be sold tickets good on the afternoon boats March 5, connecting at Vancouver with train number two. From New Westminster, passengers will connect with train two at Coquitlam.

Tickets will carry a five-day expiry date, permitting travelers return passage on any train out of Banff, up to and including train number one at 1.40 a.m., March 10, which will permit boat or train connections for the island and New Westminster.

Montreal, Feb. 25.—Canada Steamship Lines, Limited, and subsidiaries yesterday reported 1935 operating revenue at $8,657,990 compared with $8,921,398 in 1934. The reduction was stated to be due largely to a lower grain movement.

Net earnings after reduction of operating expenses were $1,295,215 against $1,750,502. Working capital account showed an excess of current liabilities over current assets of $2,609,042 against an adverse showing of $2,456,988 in the previous report. No dividends were paid.

British Merchant Marine Shrinking

London, Feb. 25.—Great Britain's merchant marine fleet today comprises only 31 per cent of the world's total shipping, compared with the 45 per cent it represented in 1914, Lieut. C. Talbot Booth of the Royal Navy says in his book, "Merchant Ships," published here yesterday.

Britain is faced with the threat of complete disappearance of her merchant fleet because of subsidies granted by foreign governments to steamship lines operating between British Empire ports, Lieut. Booth declares. He suggested the creation of a merchant marine ministry, vested with complete charge of the entire commercial shipping question, and stresses the important role played by the merchant marine in national defence.

SABOTAGE ON DESTROYER

Mine Apparatus of Velox Damaged, Says British Admiralty

Associated Press

London, Feb. 25.—The fourth case of suspected sabotage aboard British fighting vessels this winter was reported early today by the Admiralty.

The destroyer Velox, now being refitted at the Chatham dockyard, had been damaged, the Admiralty said.

It was understood the mine-releasing apparatus of the ship was put out of gear.

Admitting an investigation was under way, the Admiralty stated "It would not be in the public interest to make any statement."

Sabotage was reported discovered aboard the cruiser Cumberland, also stationed at Chatham, more than a week ago. Earlier, damage was done to the battleship Royal Oak and the submarine Oberon while they were at Devonport dockyard.

In each case the Admiralty declined to make statements other than outlining briefly the nature of the damage.

Fred Matthews Buried Today

Funeral Held at Toronto For Quebec Fighter Who Died From Bout Injuries

Toronto, Feb. 25.—One of the pallbearers at the funeral today of Fred Matthews, Arntfield, Que., boxer fatally injured in last Wednesday's "white hope" tournament, was Pat Flanagan, the man who knocked out Matthews.

Flanagan, broken-hearted over the affair, was asked by the tournament promoters to be one of the pallbearers.

"I think the boxers should have been examined after every bout," Flanagan said today. "I know I was hit low three times in my bout with Elfeston (J. Elfeston of Woodbridge, Ont.) that I eventually won on a foul. I told the doctor about it afterwards, and he just told me to bathe the sore places with cold water."

"He came out of his corner smiling to shake hands," said Flanagan. "He said, 'We'll fight, Irishman.' I said, 'Sure, we'll make it a good fight,' and we went to it.

WERE HARD BLOWS

"After a few little taps I hit him with a left hook to the jaw, and he took a count—nine, I think. He was dazed, I'm sure. After he got up I hit him on the right side of the body and then knocked him out with another left hook to the jaw. They were hard blows—no doubt about that. They would have to be hard to knock down a big boy like Matthews. I know my hands were sore from the punches, but I never dreamed he was badly hurt."

Flanagan is one year older than Matthews, but weighed only 185 to the Quebec boy's 205. He works two nights a week at a hotel and entered the tournament with the idea of making some money.

"It was my first fighting in public," he said. "I'd never done any amateur fighting even, but I'd been training for a month at the Apex Club and had been in the ring with some pretty good boys."

Flanagan said Matthews could hit well, "but the fight was over too fast for me to size him much more than that."

Dr. W. L. Robinson, pathologist who performed the autopsy, said a mastoid operation some years ago had nothing to do with Matthews's death. Mrs. Charles Karas, sister of Matthews, said the operation was performed at Gilbert Plains, Man., when Matthews was fourteen years old.

Dr. James W. Barton, Ontario Athletic Commission physician, said he would have passed Matthews even had he seen the mastoid scar.

Rev. F. N. Bowes, Willowdale United Church, conducted the funeral service.
